John D. and the Vine
Four Billion Power
Two Ate Seven or Eight
R. H. Grant Observes

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1927, by Star Co.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR., giving $500,000 to the International Fund for rebuilding and endowing the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre, says the gift is a "recognition of the debt which Great Britain and the United States owe to Shakespeare."

Rockefeller millions are working usefully all over the world, pushing American trade, fighting disease, building hospitals and colleges, repairing, protecting irreplaceable works of art.

A German poet describes a vine on the hillside, in Winter, cold, dry and leafless, while wine from its grapes made hearts cheerful far away.

In his old age, Mr. Rockefeller, through his only son, does more good than ten million vines, making his money useful all over the world. And, fortunately, he is no dry, leafless vine on a hillside, but full of life, playing golf and enjoying it in spite of his 86 years.

Nicholas M. Schenck, succeeding Marcus Loew as head of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, believer in advertising, has a new idea. His powerful magic lantern, with four thousand million candlepower back of it, scatters advertisements of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's Capitol Theatre all over the Broadway landscape. Mr. Schenck uses the Paramount Theatre, belonging to his friendly rivals, Famous Players, as a screen on which to throw, in letters 150 feet high, the advice, "Go to the Capitol Theatre for the best in moving pictures."

What Zukor and Lasky of "Famous" will invent to offset this will be something more original than an injunction.

It is suggested that the four billion candle light lantern may be raised to forty billions and the sky used as a screen. From that heaven protect us. The heavens should continue to "declare the glory of God," not the glory of soap, breakfast food or even moving pictures. Mr. Schenck, who realizes that, says, "No; not on the sky, everywhere else."

A fishing boat had drifted four thousand miles when it was picked up off our Northwest coast. White bones on the deck showed the part that cannibalism had played in the tragedy of the sea.

Two that died, last of all, were intact. The others, seven or eight, had been eaten to prolong the lives of the two. No man can say what he would do under certain circumstances, unless he has been tested under these circumstances.

R. H. Grant, super sales manager of General Motors, back from a circuit of the country's large cities, reports "exceptionally good conditions in the Southeast and Southwest on account of cotton, excellent in the Northwest on account of wheat, and improving in the Middle West as a result of a bigger corn crop than was expected."

Mr. Grant's impressions are reliable, based on the ability of the people to buy automobiles. His agents' reports, read on his return to Detroit, confirm his views. Mr. Grant found that they had sold in October 112,064

MERCURY HITS 73

The warm wave sent the mercury soaring to a new record today before blustery breezes arrived to end the spell.

A tropical disturbance was reported moving northward by the Washington weather bureau and the local forecaster predicted gales. Storm warnings are up along the New England coast.

Snow was falling as close to Boston as Western New York State and Vermont was being deluged with rain, which had fallen heavily for 24 hours with great damage to property, as the mercury here hit 73 at noon and then began its descent.

This figure was the highest for this date in the history of the weather bureau. Forty-six years ago, in mid afternoon of November 3, 1881, the temperature was 70. Until today that was the record for fifty-four years of weather bureau history.

On account of the eastward movement of the cold wave, which has scattered snow all over the West, cooler weather is predicted for Boston, but according to the weather man, the Atlantic Coast storm may delay the arrival of the cold for a few days.

VICTIM COLLAPSES AT POLICE STATION WHEN SHE REPORTS ROBBERY

Collapsing in front of Revere police headquarters, Mrs. Michael Swartz of Shirley avenue, Revere, was carried into the building today to make a report of theft and an alleged attempt to asphyxiate her, together with her daughter and her mother.

Mrs. Swartz, who had been awakened in her home by the odor of gas and who had discovered money to be gone from beneath her own pillow and that of her mother, raced to the police station, only to collapse from excitement and exhaustion.

Arthur Bowen of Pleasant street picked her up and carried her inside, where she told the story to Sergt. Charles O. Welton.

She said that when the gas woke her up, she was beginning to feel dizzy.

Reaching the kitchen, Mrs. Swartz discovered two gas cocks were open on the gas stove, and a search also fully opened.

She went into the room of her mother, Mrs. Sarah Hanscomb

TAFT DEMANDS NEW JURY SYSTEM IN U. S.

Washington, Nov. 3 (I.N.S.).—The American legal system must be reformed immediately to "render new trials impossible except for real injustice" and to abolish the practice of selecting juries of weak intelligence, Chief Justice William Howard Taft, of the United States Supreme Court, declared here today in an address to the National Crime Commission.

Taft declared the present practices in criminal trials frequently led to a "defeat of justice."

The hundreds of delegates present took Taft's speech as a reference to the long drawn-out litigation in the naval oil cases.

Justice Frederick L. Siddons, who presided in the Fall-Sinclair trial, was the first to greet Taft as he left the platform.

"You certainly have given us a message," Siddons told the chief justice.

"The method of selection of juries

2 AUTOS SOUGHT AS TOTS MOURN FOR DOLLY

A foul-play theory in the mysterious killing of five-year-old "Dolly" Adams, little pixie of Harlon avenue, grows more plausible with every passing hour, police declared today, as the dead child lay in a small white casket in her parents' home, surrounded by chums and schoolmates bidding her good-by.

Police today were searching for two automobiles, one of them linked with the theory that the little girl was given a ride and attacked, the other suspected of being a car that might have run her down accidentally.

Little real progress was made in this hunt, however, up to the hour at which "Dolly," beyond all earthly pleasures and cares, was being honored by her playmates.

MRS. PECK FIGURES IN WILSON LETTERS

CHAPTER 40

Particular interest attaches to today's installment of "The Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson," as it tells of his meeting in Bermuda with Mrs. Peck. In later years this friendship was made the target of innuendo.

The installment follows:

Copyright, 1927, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

The regular Fall meeting of the Princeton board of trustees took place October 17, 1907. Everyone knew it was to be a momentous occasion, the first opportunity to discuss Wilson's proposals since they had been approved in June. There had been a number of conferences beforehand and a lively private canvass of the situation. A strong feeling existed that the grandiose experiment was splitting the board, endangering the university.

Many of trustees were Eastern

Vera Lewis' Film Slap Knocks Out Dolores

DOLORES DEL RIO

(International News Reel Photos)

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 3 (I.N.S.).—"Slap her!" megaphoned Edwin Carewe, director, to Vera Lewis, character actress.

Miss Lewis slapped.

Dolores Del Rio, star of the picture, was the "slapped."

The resounding smack left Miss Del Rio with a loosened tooth and a swollen cheek.

Production has been stopped until the Mexican actress can return to work.

A bracelet worn by Miss Lewis is blamed.

Handcuffs are in order when the scene is re-filmed, according to Miss Del Rio.

MANY FACING 10-CENT FARE ON NEW 'L' LINE

When the new Dorchester rapid transit line of the Boston Elevated is opened to the public Saturday morning, residents of Neponset and Milton will find many changes in effect and will also pay increased carfare if they ride beyond Fields Corner.

Instead of paying 6½ cents to ride from Neponset or Milton to Andrew square station, South Boston, they will be compelled to pay 10 cents if they ride beyond Fields Corner. Thus the 6½-cent ride will be shortened by approximately two miles. This will hit many car riders who shop and attend movies at Upham's Corner.

When the new service is in operation the 6½-cent ticket will convey the rider to the exterior of the Fields Corner station. If he goes within a dime will be demanded.

A majority of those using the new rapid transit line will be benefitted by saving much time in getting to the business centre of Boston. They will get much more for their dime than ever before.

Among the changes to be effected on Saturday are the following:

The Adams street and Mind street car lines which now operates to Dudley street terminal, Roxbury will go to Fields Corner.

The Dorchester avenue and River street line which now goes to Andrew square, South Boston, will go to Fields Corner via Dorchester avenue.

The Neponset line which now operates to Andrew square, South Boston, will terminate at Fields Corner.

Every trolley car rider from Neponset and Milton will transfer at Fields Corner and then take the rapid transit line.

Local service between Fields Corner and Andrew square and between Fields Corner and Dudley street terminal will be continued.

AUTO JAMS IN STREETS RIDICULED BY FULLER WITH A 'TIP' TO POLICE

All streets in downtown Boston should be barred to leasure automobiles between 10 and 3 o'clock every week day, Governor Fuller today told the committee on safety activities at a meeting at the Hotel Bellevue.

He recommended giving pedestrians more consideration and a chance to use the streets, and he called the present situation in the downtown district "ridiculous."

Shoppes tomorrow will be called to aid the traffic survey now being conducted by experts, by specifying on slips provided for the purpose the means of transportation used in going downtown.

"The present situation, where individuals ride through downtown streets in spacious automobiles while hundreds of pedestrians are huddled on street corners waiting for a chance to cross, is ridiculous," said Governor Fuller in his speech.

"That such a situation should continue is a reflection on the intelligence of those in control.

"The greatest human problem of today has to do with the loss of lives from careless driving. Boston and vicinity should set a good example. Instead, one-third to one-half of our important streets are taken up by parked autos.

"Downtown touring during the noon hour, at least, should be prohibited. These streets are not much wider than good sidewalks, anyway, and it is a mistake to fill them with autos.

"I want to say that I do not think there is a better police force anywhere than in Boston, but I think the police need a new point of view as to the comparative importance

SINCLAIR MAN DEFIES GRAND JURY OIL PROBE

Washington, Nov. 3 (I.N.S.).—The government's determinatio to fix the blame for the mistrial of the Fall-Sinclair case was evidenced today when Assistant District Attorney Will Burkinshaw subpoenaed hotel records of all telephone calls made by Fall and Sinclair and attorneys.

Washington, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Ramifications of the Grand Jury investigation of alleged efforts to tamper with the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy trial jury spread today with increasing rapidity.

A. Mason Day, vice-president of the Sinclair Exploration Co., to whom the government charges the defective shadowing the jury made their reports at the home of Donald Woodward, wealthy Washington merchant, was taken before the Grand Jury, but remained only a few moments.

It was stated at the district attorney's office that he probably would be taken before one of the trial justices and there asked the same questions which he refused to answer before the Grand Jury.

In the usual course of court procedure this would be preliminary to

HUNDREDS FLEE FLOOD IN RUTLAND, VT.

RUTH 'FLOP AS SPEAKER' AS 300 MEN DINE HER

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Joseph Holloway, spokesman for the Wheeling backers of Ruth Elder's transatlantic flight, today confirmed reports that a fund of $1,000 had been raised here by admirers of Miss Elder and her pilot, George Haldeman, for distribution to the skipper and crew of the Dutch tanker Barendrecht, which rescued them at sea.

Paris, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Some 300 men of the American colony in Paris today gave Ruth Elder a rousing human welcome which brought a blush to her cheeks and made her semi-speechless with pleasure.

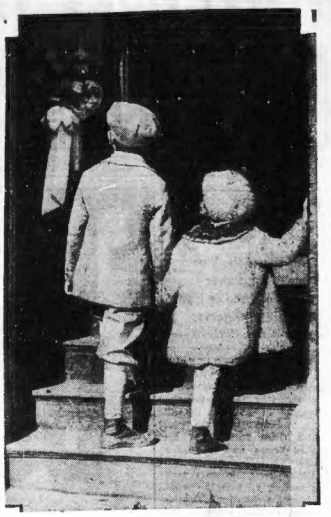
Mourning for Dolly Adams ~ Girl Gives Clue in Child's Slaying ~ Little Pals Pay Last Call



CHILDREN MAKE BOUQUETS FOR SLAIN GIRL

AIDS INVESTIGATORS

Winifred Gallagher says she saw Dolly talking to a man in an auto near Dudley terminal just before her body was found.

THE MAN AS WINIFRED DESCRIBES HIM

The man she saw talking to the slain Adams child wore a brown suit, Winifred Gallagher told the police. She said he was about 30 or 35 years old and his complexion was dark. Winifred said "Dolly" was laughing.

VISIT HOUSE OF MOURNING

Robert Burke and his sister Virginia, two of Dolly's playmates, grieving that she will never play with them again, going to her house for the last time before the funeral.

PLAYMATES MOURN 'DOLLY' AS POLICE HUNT AUTOS

The first to arrive with flowers to grace her bier were Ronald "Sonny" MacDonald and his sister, Anna, children of Mrs. Mary MacDonald of Blanchard street.

On the day she was killed "Dolly" Adams warned Mrs. MacDonald in her old-fashioned way that her children were playing with their wheelbarrow in Elliot square and in danger from passing automobiles. Heeding this warning, the mother went and brought them home.

Little Roy Adams, brother of the dead girl, who was himself struck by an automobile in front of his home yesterday, was fully recovered and running around as usual today. Not realizing his sister was dead, he told everybody she was home "from the hospital."

"No, Dolly's dead," his brother told him, but Roy only repeated that she wasn't sick any more because she was home from the hospital.

Bouquets From Pals

Scores of women and children viewed the body of the little girl who, without a mark on her face in spite of the violence of her death, looked as if she were sleeping peacefully amid surroundings of dazzling white.

A few modest bouquets brought by children were practically the only flowers. The casket, in the bay window of the front room of the house at No. 1113 Harrison avenue, was on a pedestal, at its head a burning candle and behind it a cross illumined with brilliants.

Two small, white pinks were placed in "Dolly's" hair by her mother.

The scene outside the house might lead a stranger to think some prominent public man lay in death inside, so large was the crowd of mourners. Among these were mothers and children from the Dorchester district around Clapp street.

Two Autos Hunted

One of the automobiles for which police are hunting is a 1924 model touring car which, containing a man and woman and without lights, was seen on Clapp street, Dorchester, about eight minutes before the body of "Dolly" Adams was found in the gutter of that street on Halloween.

The finding of this car and its occupants, police believe, may reveal how the child met her death.

Hunt is also going on for a closed car and its driver who was seen engaging little Dolly in conversation near the Dudley street terminal on the evening she was killed. Winifred Gallagher, 14-year-old school girl, gave the authorities this information and a description of the man.

A "hit-and-run" driver injured Arthur Magee, 16, of Chauncy street, Jamaica Plain, at Elmore and Washington streets, Roxbury, last night and freshly shocked that district. The boy's condition is critical.

Still another shock came when Roy Adams, little brother of Dolly, dressed in new clothes purchased for him by sympathetic reporters, was knocked down by a car in front of his home where police, reporters and others were gathered discussing the mystery of Dolly's death.

The information about the touring car seen in Clapp street was considered as important as Winifred Gallagher's story, although pointing, perhaps, toward a different solution of the mystery.

This important clew was provided by Theodore Dooley of No. 3 Northam Park, Dorchester, driver of a mail truck, who in passing through Clapp street told the police that he saw a small touring car containing a man and a woman parked near the spot where Dorothy Adams' body was found.

AUTO'S LIGHTS OUT

The lights of the machine were out and the motor was running. Dooley places the time as 10:05, eight minutes before the child's body was discovered lying in the gutter.

At the time Dooley thought the automobile contained a petting party. Since then he has thought it strange that a petting party would leave the motor running. Dooley thinks the machine was a 1924 model of widely known make.

Dooley's information, the police believe, links up with the mystery car that was noted by a service station keeper and others at the corner of Eustis street and Harrison avenue, and which stopped in front of the Adam home.

The one discrepancy is that the service station man and his companions believed the car they saw to be a larger one.

MAN IN PRISON WINS $5,000 FOR INJURIES

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 3 (I.N.S.).—Climaxing one of the most unusual cases it has ever considered, the State Court of Claims today awarded William J. Dietz, twenty-three, $5,000 for loss of two fingers of his right hand while he was working in the Sing Sing Prison tin shop.

Dietz is still a prisoner serving a ten-year sentence for manslaughter. He pleaded that he was a boxer and could never resume his ring activity because of his injury.

HOT HERE, SNOW IN PITTSBURGH

Moreover, to the westward of the cold area, higher temperatures are being reported—making the country, meteorologically speaking, an ice-cream sandwich.

"Why the warm wave?" was asked of George Loveland, official local weather prognosticator.

In reply he explained that there is a low pressure area passing to the north of us, a high pressure area in motion on our south, causing a suction or flow of hot air across us from the South.

3-Day Blizzard Perils Tourists in Wyoming

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 2 (A.P.)—A three-day blizzard along the continental divide in western Wyoming today left upwards of 75 motorists marooned at Medicine Bow, while many tourists were forced to abandon automobiles at other points. Many persons who abandoned automobiles at Laramie and Rock Springs, Wyo., arrived here today.

Rumors that a plane bearing Mrs. Waldo Johnston of Cooperstown, N. Y., to Los Angeles had been lost were dispelled when the ship arrived here five hours overdue. The pilot said he fought head winds of from 40 to 60 miles an hour from Chicago to Salt Lake and was forced once to refuel.

MYSTERY OVER CREW OF SEIZED SHIP DEEPENS

Mystery which has engulfed the two-masted schooner Alda since her seizure by the Coast Guard several days ago grew deeper today when immigration officials at Boston asked the guard to furnish complete list of the crew.

They Say It in Tears for Dolly!

By WIN BROOKS.

Up the long road that leads through the forest to the castle on the hill, past the broad lakes mirroring the sun, and the fields still green beneath a November sky, the glistening-eyed subjects of a queen's dynasty walked today.

To stand, bare-headed, or kneel, at the bier of a Queen.

New Dress at Last!

Of course, there were no lakes, and there was no forest because there are no trees. And the long road was but Harrison avenue, lusty and roaring with the trucks that speeded past. And the castle, if you lacked imagination, was only the three stories of red brick that rise above the door, chalk-marked "1113."

But there was a Queen.

Dolly Adams, the Queen of Harrison avenue, lying there in the "front room" behind new curtains. Dolly Adams, the Queen whose reign has ended.

Dolly Adams in a new white dress —a new dress at last—her brown hair curled down about her childish face. Lips parted, slightly, in a smile.

Dolly Adams come home again—home from the morgue—bringing with her none of the silvery laughter with which she ruled that land, but with her smile still left to light the darkened room.

They came, her subjects, from the school, and from the streets; from the drab, ill-lighted tenements and from the better homes; Catholic and Jew and Protestant; white and brown. No creed nor color line. Only the bond that held them close.

Stand here a minute at the door-way of the "front room" and watch them come and go. Three girls first, none older than nine. Kneel and cross themselves. Lips move in prayer. They rise, stand there a moment gazing down at the Queen. Move out quietly.

Three boys now. That smallest one, with his finger in his mouth, is Washington Lambert. He has teeth like snow against the black of his face. He lives upstairs. Frank Reiser and Edmond Lynch are with him. They work and go to "Continuey." The Queen was their friend.

Flower for "Dolly"

Here is a woman with a child in her arms. She has another child outside in a baby carriage. Outside there are many baby carriages. Here are seven girls, come together, none younger than fifteen. All knew and loved Dolly Adams.

Here is a fireman. George Adams was a fireman once. Here is a child, garbed almost in rags, with a flower in her hand.

"Flower for Dolly," he says.

The room is banked with them. Outside, on the door, tied with a white ribbon are more. The first.

Startlingly clear, for the wind blows just right, comes the sound of ign bell at the Albert Palmer School. For once the Queen does not respond to its urgent message. Distantly an "El" train rumbles into the Dudley street station. Roar of automobiles. A child's cries. These were the sounds she knew.

A man, white-faced, in a dark suit. A woman, weeping, in black.

They come and go. Come and go. And keep on coming, for Harrison avenue is a long street, and all Harrison avenue was the Queen's.

Going "Up the Road"

Tomorrow, at St. Philip's, three blocks down the way, the bell will toll and the great gold cross will blaze with a promise ever new, and up the long road, that is only Harrison avenue, and through the forest that is not there, the procession that marks the passing of a Queen will wend its way.

From the bier in the castle that is only a brick tenement to the peaceful solitude of old Mount Benedict, where there are really trees.

And where, at the end of all earthly things, beggars and kings rest side by side, merged one at last.

daughter, Ethel, awakening the two. Gas had just begun to seep into that room.

Two younger children, Bessie Swartz, 9, and Morris, 12, were asleep in distant sections of the house, where it was impossible for the gas to enter their rooms.

When Mrs. Swartz's mother, Mrs. Ida Weiner, was aroused by her terrified daughter, the elder woman slipped a hand beneath her pillow and shrieked when she found that $184 she had placed there the night before was gone.

Fear gripped Mrs. Swartz anew and she raced back to her room, where, beneath the pillow she had reached $52, yesterday's proceeds of a delicatessen shop she operates with her daughter Ethel and with the grandmother in the South End.

The money was not there. Then Mrs. Swartz raced for the police.

WOMAN JUDGE GRANTS DIVORCE TO CHALIAPIN

'DIVORCE A TRICK'

WOULD LIVE WITH HIM

Mrs. Rose Simolian, Providence stenographer, who told Judge Beane, in Middlesex Probate Court, she had been tricked into granting a divorce to Charles P. Simolian of Somerville. "I'd rather live with him than divorce him," she said. He won custody of their two children, too.

$300 ALIMONY PAYMENT ON HIS 'HONOR'

Moscow, Nov. 3 (I. N. S.).—A divorce was granted today to Feodor Chaliapin, the famous Russian basso. Chaliapin is now in Paris, where he filed suit for divorce through the Russian embassy a week ago. Mme. Chaliapin and her daughters are in Moscow.

The case was considered and the decree rendered by a woman judge—an unmarried woman of 28. The whole proceeding took only 15 minutes because, under the Soviet law, the court is compelled to grant a divorce automatically at either party's request.

Mme. Chaliapin was too nervous to appear in court. She was represented by a lawyer and by her daughter, Mme. Irene Bakshieff. The latter, upon advice of counsel, entered a "moral protest," but she was powerless to intervene legally.

ALIMONY ON "HONOR."

The court, in granting the divorce, pointed out that Chaliapin had promised to pay $300 alimony monthly, adding:

"But this payment must be left to Chaliapin's honor, because he lives in foreign countries and is outside the reach of Soviet law."

The singer, who is well known in the United States, is said to be planning another marriage.

First intimation of the suit was contained in a legal notice printed here on Oct. 28. Even Mme. Chaliapin was said to have been taken unawares. Although a Russian citizen, the basso could not return to Moscow to file the suit in person, because he is virtually an exile.

WARNED OUT OF RUSSIA.

He was recently accused by the Soviets of refusing to return for a series of concerts. His property was then confiscated. Later Chaliapin is said to have given an interview to a Paris newspaper which displeased the Soviet officials still further. He was then warned not to return here.

Yolle Ignatievna Chaliapin, the divorced wife, is fifty-four years old. She was a well-known dancer before her marriage.

Bushnell Will Guard Cambridge Polls

As a result of many complaints which he claims to have received, District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell of Middlesex County today announced that he will have special investigators at certain polling places in Cambridge on election day.

The district attorney hastened to declare that he had no particular interest in any candidate, but the law must be obeyed, and heavy penalties will be imposed on all convicted violators.

The statement read:

"The law is not concerned with the success or failure of any individual candidate. I am not at all interested in this particular aspect of the matter. The law is interested in and specially provides for fair, honest and properly conducted elections, and imposes severe penalties on any infractions of this law.

"The election in Cambridge Tuesday will be held according to law. Violations will be prosecuted to the fullest extent and maximum penalties sought."

Mr. Bushnell said his special investigators will be trained "in election frauds work," and will be placed in wards and precincts concerning which he has received complaints of improper practices. They will report to him on Wednesday morning, and any evidence of violations will be laid forthwith before the Grand Jury, which will then be sitting.

He added that if any indictments are returned, he will ask for immediate trial.

TELLS PUTNAM $700,000 IS A WRONG TOTAL

Frank M. Putnam, yesterday appointed state director of personnel and standardization, was today called upon to announce that State employes will get less than $300,000 increases rather than the $700,000 previously made public.

The request was contained in a letter written by Frank A. Goodwin as chairman of the legislative committee of the Commonwealth Service Association, made up of state employes.

"Every newspaper says the State employes will get $700,000 this year," Mr. Goodwin wrote. "You know that is not so, and cannot be so. I know and you know that it cannot be more than $300,000, and it is just as well for you to tell the truth now, because when the supplementary salary total is given to the public, as it will be, I am satisfied that it will be less than $300,000, and that is no more than the employes would get without any reclassification.

"This unjust classification has been forced through without giving the employes an opportunity to be heard, but under the law every employe has a right to appeal to the director of personnel, and then from his decision to the Governor and Council.

"You have an opportunity to bring about a better feeling between the employes and the State officials by remedying these injustices, and you can only do it by performing the duties of your office yourself. You have a wonderful opportunity and I hope you will take advantage of it."

In his opening remarks Mr. Goodwin welcomed Director Putnam "into the fold of those State employes who are performing services for far less pay than they are worth. It has always seemed inconsistent that a commission which was always proclaiming to the world efficiency and economy should be paying one of its own commissioners $6,500 a year for doing nothing."

Marriage returns in the office of the Somerville city clerk today revealed that Dr. Lewis Nye Bump, 59, of Sycamore street, Winter Hill, was married on October 26 in Worcester to Miss Rosina Dorothy Holloway, 27, of Chandler street, Arlington.

It was the third marriage for Dr. Bump, a well-known physician and surgeon, but the first for his bride, who is a daughter of Charles I. Holloway.

The couple filed intentions in Somerville on October 23, and three days later, after obtaining a five-day waiver from Judge Sturtevant in Somerville court, went to Worcester, where the ceremony was performed by Fred W. Cronin, justice of the peace.

UNIFORM DRUG LAW FOR U. S. PROPOSED

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.
International News Service.

New York, Nov. 3.—Adoption of a draft of a proposed uniform State narcotic defense law is one of the principal matters before the first conference of committees of the World Conference on Narcotic Education and the International Narcotic Education Association, which begin a three-days' session here this afternoon.

The draft has been prepared and will be submitted to the gathering tomorrow by Captain Richmond P. Hobson, of Los Angeles, president of the National Narcotic Education Association.

Nearly all the States in the Union have their own narcotic statutes. Some of these laws are rudimentary and others ineffectual, delegates say. Probably no two statutes are the same.

Divergent or ineffective State laws, delegates assert, encourage and promote illegitimate traffic in drugs across State borders.

Captain Hobson said today that if a uniform State law is adopted at this conference it will be submitted to all State legislatures when they next convene. In due course, he added, the organization will take up uniform city ordinances to harmonize with State laws.

The best State law is in New York, he said. California passed three narcotic bills at its last session, one of which was a hospitalization measure, the first in the annals of American legislation.

Captain Hobson said leaders in the fight against the drug evil are eager to develop the work of hospitalization because, by this means, drug addicts are isolated while "on the drug" and prevented from recruiting others.

This afternoon's session was to be given over to registration of the delegates. About 200 are expected to attend. Tonight will be a mass meeting at which Hobson will preside and submit his report. This will be followed by addresses by physicians and other experts on narcotics.

SPIRIT ABOVE RICHES, SAYS SCIENTIST

Tremont Theatre was filled this noon when Paul Stark Seeley, C.S.B., of Portland, Ore., spoke on "Christian Science and the Law of Divine Provision."

The lecture was presented under the auspices of the Christian Science Mother Church. The lecturer said in part:

"We are all interested in the development of human inventions, the aeroplane, the radio, the automobile and electrical appliances. Some of these lessen the burden of physical toil. None of them can lessen the burden of the heart. Their scope is in a limited material realm and they are powerless to minister to man's spiritually needs.

"So it is with material wealth. With it we may acquire things which afford a temporary sense of satisfaction. Yet no amount of material wealth of itself can bring to us a healthy body and a happy mind. These can only be found in spiritual understanding, an understanding of God and the relationship of unity which is the true individuality that man has with God.

"Christian Science is restoring to us a realization of man's spiritual unity with God, supreme intelligence, and enabling us to see that God, divine Mind, has provided and will forever provide for us if we but recognize and express Him in our thoughts and lives.

"Everyone needs what Mrs. Eddy has given—the true idea of God and man, the true idea of life and the purpose of existence. Mrs. Eddy did not make laws of life and health, she discovered that such laws exist and she also discovered how they may be utilized by men."

SKIPPER OF RUM SHIP ON TRIAL

Captain Brown Willis, skipper of the Nicaraguan steamship Clara Mathieu, went on trial today before a jury in Federal court on an indictment charging him with obstructing justice by influencing members of his crew against appearing before a Federal Grand Jury in New York last February.

Captain Willis, his craft and crew were seized by coast guardsmen off Cuttyhunk in January, and, following a Federal investigation here, were indicted for conspiracy to smuggle liquor.

After another investigation in New York similar indictment was returned there, whereupon the charges in this district against him were dropped. Since that time Willis has been trailed by government agents all along the Atlantic seaboard, while under bail, and has only recently left a New York hospital, where he was confined after a shooting affray in Central Park.

The indictment against him read to the jury today charges that he paid the fares of his crew from Boston to their homes in the Canadian Provinces a few days after they had been summoned to appear as witnesses before a grand jury investigation into the activities of his ship.

MAN, SHOT IN AUGUST, ESCAPES NEW FUSILLADE

Bridgeport, Ct., Nov. 3 (A.P.)—Death in the form of bullets sought out Patsy Santora of Stratford for the second time within a few months today and again was cheated. Half a dozen guns barked from an auto that had been following Santora's car as he turned into his driveway, but the bullets all lodged in the garage framework with the exception of one, which splintered the windshield, causing Santora's only injuries—lacerations about the face.

An August 13 of this year Santora was shot, and James Monomo of 104 Hallock street, charged with attempted murder, is at present awaiting trial in Superior Court.

$5,000 DAMAGE AT SOUTH BOSTON BLAZE

Two alarms were sounded today for fire that started in the Felton & Sons, Inc., distillery, corner of East Second and H streets, South Boston, and, for a time, threatened the entire structure. Damage was estimated at about $5,000.

ADMIRER STABS WEST END GIRL

Infuriated, according to the police, when he saw Mrs. Minerva Woods, 38, of No. 70 Phillips street, West End, in company with another man in a house on Phillips court, Jean Clarke, 35, of Lynde street, West End, stabbed her four times and then, frightened at his act, placed her in a cab and took her to the hospital.

Clarke was arrested at the Haymarket Relief Station after his story to doctors caused them to summon police of the Joy street station. He was held as a suspicious person.

Mrs. Woods was found to have been stabbed in the left breast, back right and left shoulders. Doctors believe she will recover.

According to the police, Clarke laid in wait for Mrs. Woods when he found her in the Phillips court house. As she emerged, it is alleged, he attacked her.

U. S.-ST. PIERRE RUM PACT FAILS

Washington, Nov. 3 (A.P.)—Virtual collapse of negotiations for a rum agreement between the United States and France affecting the French Islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon off the Newfoundland coast, was reported today in Washington.

French authorities were said to feel that the American request for information on the departure of every liquor laden vessel from the island ports to American waters was too drastic and might infringe on the rights of French nationals.

American officials have claimed that not only would about 80 per cent of the liquor smuggling in the United States be stopped but a check could be made of navigation violations as many fraudulent clearance papers have been found on rum ships.

OVER MILLION LEFT BY ATTY. HEMENWAY

Executors of the will of Alfred Hemenway, one of the "old school" of Boston lawyers, which executors include the First National Bank of Boston, filed bonds of $2,000,000 each today in the Suffolk Registry of Probate.

The executors estimate roughly the value of the estate at $1,119,000, consisting of $1,000,000 personal and $119,000 real property.

Atty. Hemenway, who was one of the best-known members of the Boston bar, left the bulk of his estate in trust for the benefit of relatives who will receive the income during their lives.

Upon the death of the last beneficiary, the residue of the estate will be divided into three equal parts. One will go to the heirs-at-law, and one other each to Harvard and Yale universities, in addition to a present of specific bequest of $50,000 to each for their law libraries.

Sign Erected for Haverhill Veteran Disfigured

Haverhill, Nov. 3 (A.P.)—Members of the Wilbur M. Cumeau Post of the American Legion are prosecuting a search for the parties who painted green a bronze sign bearing the name of Patrick F. Finnegan square.

Finnegan died in the service during the war and the square was named for him. At the time of the naming there was considerable opposition by parties who wanted another name.

Commander William A. Gavin of the legion said that a day and night guard would be placed near the sign, if necessary, to keep it from being desecrated.

John O'Leary. At the grave in Old Calvary cemetery a squad of the 9th Regiment Veterans' Association fired a last salute, followed by taps.

MAN FOUND HANGED WORE VERMONT HAT

Jamestown, N. Y., Nov. 3 (A.P.)—A hat that had been purchased at Rutland, Vt., was the only clue to the identification of a man's body found hanging today from the limb of a tree in South Main street. A belt had been used for a noose.

The man, about 40 years of age, had been dead several hours before his body was discovered by a passerby.

ACID Intoxication

"It Gets Seven In Ten Past 40"

When your back hurts, your head aches, your stomach sours, the morning looks gloomy and you hardly know what is the matter, it is more than likely that you are a victim of the great American complaint—"Acid Intoxication"—an excess of acid in the system. Lack of balance in the diet and eating too much rich food stores up uric acid in the body to torture and weaken you with kidney trouble, dizzy spells, rheumatic twinges and high blood pressure.

All you really need to relieve these distressing troubles is a thorough flushing out of the body poisons in a natural way. There is one mild, easy, ideal method which has been found highly effective by thousands of people for years. You simply take a tablespoonful of JAD SALTS in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia. By helping to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys and neutralize acids in the system, the source of irritation is often entirely done away with and bladder disorders relieved as well. JAD SALTS is inexpensive, absolutely harmless, makes a delightful, sparkling lithia-water drink and may be obtained in four ounce size from any druggist.

FEAR 16 DIED IN FERRY SINKING

Sydney, N. S. W., Nov. 3 (A.P.)—The peaceful decks of a plodding ferryboat were thrown into an uproar of horror and death today when the boat, carrying 150 persons, many of them school children, was sunk by the steamship Tahiti, outward bound for San Francisco.

There was an explosion and timber was hurled in every direction as the ferryboat went down three minutes after the crash.

Ten bodies have been recovered. Fifty persons were treated for injuries. The number of those rescued was uncertain, since scores of small boats that sped to the scene and picked up survivors carried them to scattered points along the harbor.

Belief that some passengers had been trapped in the cabins of the ferryboat led to the fear that at least 16 lives were lost.

Visits will be made to friends in several cities, and the Tarkingtons will reach their winter home about December 1. Tarkington said the sight of his left eye is improving and that he had been able to do considerable writing since the first of September. He said he had entirely given up writing at night.

URGES STATE CONTROL OF CITIES' EXPENSES

A State finance commission to control municipal expenditures was proposed today at a hearing before the Special Taxation Commission at the State House by Phillip Nichols of Newton, a taxation expert. The speaker declared that under a plan operating successfully in Indiana, an aggrieved citizen of a town could protest what he believed to be an extravagant expenditure to the State Tax Commissioner, who is vested with authority to curtail such outlays.

SINCLAIR MAN DEFIES PROBE IN OIL CASE

tha haling of him before a United States commissioner, where a formal complaint would be lodged. It was said that Day was prepared to furnish bond in that event.

REFUSES TO ANSWER.

He had refused to answer certain questions before the grand jury on the ground that his testimony might incriminate him.

A surprise witness today before the grand jury was Mark B. Thompson of New Mexico, of counsel for Albert B. Fall, codefendant with Harry F. Sinclair in the trial which ended so sensationally when Justice Siddons cleared the jury box.

Thompson said he had not been summoned. He was taken into the jury room by Neil Burkinshaw, assistant district attorney directing the investigation.

GRILLED ABOUT PHONES.

Upon leaving the grand jury room Thompson said he had been questioned about a telephone call which he made one evening during the trial to Daniel Jackson, an assistant United States attorney general. He said he and Jackson had been friends for many years, but he could not disclose what he had told the grand jury.

Fall, who leased the Teapot Dome Naval Reserve to Sinclair, the act that brought the indictment of the two, in a statement issued on his own behalf, had denied any knowledge of the activities of Burns detectives which the government charges made efforts to obtain contact with the jurors for Sinclair.

Edward C. Kidwell, slender, shock-haired Juror No. 11, also went again before the inquisitorial body today to refute further charges made by a street car conductor and a newspaper reporter that he freely discussed the case against the court's orders and expressed the hope of soon having an automobile "as long as this block."

264 Divorces Came From Reno Mill in October

Reno, Nev., Nov. 3 (I.N.S.).—In October 264 divorces were granted here.

The divorce mills began to grind merrily this month. Twenty-eight decrees were granted to November 1. During the past four months all records in marriage licenses issued, suits filed and decrees granted have been repeatedly broken. Proposals have been made to add one or two more judges to the district in order to relieve the jam in the courts.

The State of Nevada has about 70,000 people.

speechmaker, I am a total flop," she murmured. "My heart gets mixed up in my throat."

Then mumbling her thanks, she sat down to a roar of American cheers.

Captain Haldeman, hardly less howled over by the welcome, which surpassed all previous ones, said that he was "more up in the air than when flying."

During the forenoon Miss Elder and Captain Haldeman managed to slip to Le Bourget, where they made a flight over the environs of Paris, circling Versailles and Fontainebleau in a Spring-like sunshine.

FRIENDS SNATCH WORKER FROM JAWS OF DEATH

Caught in machinery while at work at the Boston Woven Hose Company plant in Cambridge today Cornelius Conley, 37, of Somerville, was snatched from the jaws of death by fellow employes.

He was taken to Cambridge Municipal Hospital, suffering from severe bruises and cuts about the body and face.

TAFT SAYS NEW TRIALS MAR JUSTICE

ought not to be such that counsel for the defendants, by exclusion of worthy citizens from the panel, keep jurors of weak intelligence, of little experience and subject to emotions easily aroused," said Taft.

"Exemptions from jury service ought to be cut down, and society ought to be able to secure a jury that approaches the issues with a sense of its obligation to enforce the law without fear or favor, and with intelligence enough to learn from the judge what the law is and to weigh the evidence with reference to its violation. It is not an easy reform."

Taft declared the "American people in many States have distrusted the judges" and proposed legal reforms by which the courts would be given wider latitude in charging juries.

"The chance of conviction of innocent persons by a jury of twelve men, of course, by judicial conduct and tyranny must be minimized by a fair review on appeal," Taft continued. "But the danger is not sufficiently great to require that the reins should be thrown on the back of the jurors to follow their own sweet will in their convictions."

The chief justice declared the "first and chief object of the criminal law is its deterrent effect on future would-be criminals."

He urged courts and juries to remember that the purpose of the law is to "punish the criminal rather than to reform him."

Taft praised the Baumes law in New York. He said:

"We hear talk of the criminal and his family. The victim of the murderer, of the hold-up man, of the burglar and of the thief and the victim's family are being remembered in the new legislation in New York."

CHARLESTOWN MARINE CITED FOR BRAVERY

A citation commending Private Severin Roche of the Marine Barracks at the Charlestown Navy Yard, for bravery in action at Nicaragua last May, was received from Major-General John E. Lejeune, commandant of the Marine Corps today. The citation states that Privates Roche and Simon, suddenly found themselves in the midst of the enemy, and that Simon took two prisoners.

The prisoners attempted to escape when he was disarmed by a bullet which struck his hand, but Private Roche brought down the prisoners.

HARLEM SAYS "BYE, BYE" TO FLORENCE MILLS

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—"Bye, bye, bye, honey," murmured by a chorus girl as she bent over the coffin of Florence Mills, negro singer and dancer—was a farewell spoken for all Harlem, whose people came today to pay last respects to the actress star who had taken her first bows on Harlem sidewalks in a stage career that led her to international success.

For eight hours a file of mourners continued virtually unbroken past the bier. The body will lie in state in a Harlem mortuary until Sunday afternoon when the funeral will take place.

Wounded, Watches Chum Who Shot Him End Life

Dover, Del., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Shot by his chum and refusing his plea to kill him in revenge, John H. Bailey, 17, dying in agony from his wounds, watched William H. Stanley, 17, shoot himself in despair. Stanley died a few hours later, while physicians believe Bailey will also die.

A quarrel as to who should operate their automobile after it crashed into a fence today precipitated the shooting, police said. Stanley, the driver, was said to have fired two shots at Bailey when he attempted to take possession of the wheel.

BLAST IN HOME OF GOV. TRUMBULL'S KIN; 1 HURT

Bridgeport, Ct., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Miss Jenny Colt, housekeeper in the home of A. H. Trumbull, Stratford, a brother of Governor John H. Trumbull, was injured in an explosion which wrecked an unused laundry stove it was learned here today. A fragment of the stove entered Miss Colt's body and became lodged in her back. Miss Colt heard a peculiar sizzling noise coming from the cellar. She looked at the furnace which seemed to be all right and returning upstairs when the laundry stove near the furnace burst into pieces.

Dr. H. De Ruyter Howland, who treated Miss Colt said the remains of the stove were cold. The water in the tank was also cold and he said the blast could only have been caused by some explosive.

WINE NATIONS ATTACK 'DRY LAW' COUNTRIES

Geneva, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The wine producing countries of Europe have administered what is regarded as an official slap at countries like the United States which prevent the importation of products of the vine such as red and white wines and champagne.

These countries have annexed to the convention for the abolition of import and export prohibitions and restrictions, the text of which was completed today by a co-ordinating committee of the international conference on the subject now in session, a declaration on the subject.

This declaration reads that although these countries do not desire to place obstacles in the way of the success of the conference nor raise a controversy on the question of principles, which would lead to no definite conclusion, nevertheless they are convinced that the prohibition of viticultural products cannot be justified under the terms of the convention.

In particular, the declaration, which is adhered to by the delegations of France, Greece, Hungary Italy, Portugal, Jugoslavia and Switzerland, insists that the prevention of the importation of wine can not be justified under article four of the convention.

This article permits the signatory nations to maintain prohibitions and restrictions imposed to protect the public health.

JUDGE REFUSES TO EXONERATE M'CURDY

Brenton H. MacCurdy of Somerville, often a storm center of dispute in Boston during his career as lecturer on religion and other debatable topics, was given a suspended sentence of one month in the House of Correction today for larceny of $25 from a bootblack by means of a worthless check.

As eloquently as he ever talked on the lecture platform, MacCurdy argued with Judge William Sullivan in municipal court for filing of the charge with the understanding that he would make restitution.

"The gentleman has been here before on the same complaint, and his reputation cannot be damaged by sentence," retorted Judge Sullivan. "I sentence you to one month but the sentence is suspended if you make restitution."

Behind MacCurdy in the courtroom stood Vincent Bilotta, the High street shoe-shine parlor manager, who caused the lecturer's arrest. Bilotta got his money.

According to Bilotta's story, MacCurdy induced him to cash the check and later paid $5, promising to make good the remainder. When he failed to return, Bilotta told the police and MacCurdy was arrested by Special Officers Lynch and Dwyer.

MAYOR DRIVES STEAM ROLLER IN CITY TOUR

There may or may not be any significance in it, but while Chairman Charles L. Carr, Commissioner Courtenay Guild and Engineer Guy Emerson of the Finance Commission looked on today, Mayor Nichols drove a steam-roller through Boston—well, a street of Boston—and crushed down stony opposition.

It was during a tour of Hub streets that have been resurfaced and improved in the past two years of the Nichols administration. In a total of $1,750,000, and the Mayor operated the steam-roller in Washington street, just beyond Dover, for the fun of the thing.

The bus-tour, during which the Mayor skillfully operated a megaphone just like the sight-seeing announcers do, took his party of city officials, Finance Commission members and members of the Chamber of Commerce through almost every section of Boston.

He showed his guests the Washington street resurfacing and informed them that city records give no clew as to when it was last done; he rode them over the newly-resurfaced Boylston street; took them over the new surface of Columbus avenue and then swung them through improved streets in every section of the city.

Afterwards, he ushered his guests into a dining room of the Hotel Lenox and served them luncheon of pedestrians and automobile drivers.

"I think that when it comes to crossing the streets a pedestrian should come much nearer to having the right of way, and I am impressed, as I walk around the city, with the fact that the average auto driver has an exaggerated idea of his own importance, an idea shared to considerable degree by the police.

"If individuals singly and in pairs want to ride around in 16-foot automobiles, my suggestion is to permit it only with due consideration for pedestrians.

"My business interests would indeed be best served if everybody had to ride in motor cars, but human instincts prompt me to speak as I do.

"It is unfortunate that we should humbly peg along in the present situation. Why not try a few experiments?

WOULD LIST OFFENDERS.

"I feel that if citizens themselves would report reckless driving there would be fewer such drivers. Newspapers could help by printing the names of those whose licenses or registrations are revoked or suspended for driving under the influence of liquor or driving so as to endanger lives."

The questionnaire tomorrow in connection with the expert traffic survey will be conducted at ten of the leading retail stores without inconvenience to the shoppers.

All entering these stores will be handed cards and by simply tearing off a corner and dropping it in a receptacle they can inform the experts whether they came downtown by elevated, subway or trolley car; by walking; by automobile left parked in a street, or by automobile left in a garage.

The stores at which this balloting will take place ar eChrist's, Jordan Marsh Company, Filene's, Shepard Stores, Slattery's, R. H. Stearns, F. H. White's, Houghton & Dutton Company, Conrad's.

BUCKLEY FREED OF M'GANN CHARGES

"Johnny" Buckley, manager of Jack Sharkey, heavyweight boxer, in East Cambridge district court today was found not guilty of threatening John McGann, treasurer of the Argonne A. A., and of operating an automobile so as to endanger the safety of the public.

The finding was made by Judge Joseph Donovan after hearing considerable testimony, including that of the arresting officer, Thomas O'Leary, who said the only voice he heard was McGann's shouting: "I'll put you back where you came from."

John P. Feeney, counsel for Buckley, argued that his client went to Cambridge on a peaceful mission, that he was angered by McGann's reference to a previous jail sentence and that he went back to remonstrate with him.

McGann testified that he was in Inman square about midnight on the night in question when Buckley appeared in his automobile and that Buckley pursued him up on the sidewalk, and threatened: "I'll mangle you and break every bone in your body."

Bernard O'Neill, of the Argonne A. A., testified to an occasion in the club on August 25, when he claimed to have heard Buckley threaten McGann and then strike him on the head with a pump.

In his own defense Buckley denied making any threats or attempting to run over McGann. He said he went to Cambridge on the night in question to visit his mother and on returning was driving through Inman square when McGann shouted at him: "I'll put you back where you came from."

Buckley said he went back to ask McGann what he meant and drove up on the runway of the firehouse to talk to him.

Wants League to Set Day of Prayer to 'Redeem Chicago'

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 3 (A.P.)—An appeal to the League of Nations to set aside a day of prayer for "the redemption" of Chicago was suggested in a telegram to the prime minister from a Canadian roused by Mayor William Thompson's anti-British crusade.

The telegram, signed by John Wallace, a citizen of Hamilton, Ont., petitioned the prime minister to:

"Kindly instruct the Canadian representative at Geneva to appeal to the League of Nations to request the civilized world to set aside the first Sunday in December as a day of prayer for the redemption of Chicago."

NEW TUBES IN TRAFFIC PLAN

Designed to relive the traffic tangle in Governor square, Kenmore Station, to speed up slow trolley service through Huntington avenue to Brookline Village, and to alleviate traffic conditions in Harrison avenue, Beach street and Atlantic avenue by buying the Elevated structure and constructing a tunneling bridge or tunnel to East Boston, Mayor Nichols' program for transit improvements will involve $20,000,000.

Most important is that part of his legislative program which would extend the Boylston street subway beyond Governor square where fury reigns during every rush period of the day and where slow trolleys block automobile lines and automobile crossings block the trolleys.

Mayor Nichols will ask the Legislature to grant him rapid transit reliefs that will include a subway under Huntington avenue to Brookline Village, connecting Brookline with the heart of Boston by a quick underground trip, in comparison with the slow, tedious, traffic-blocked journey the surface trolleys now make.

"FOUR MERRY MILKMEN" SEEK RADIO INJUNCTION

3 HAVERHILL MEN ARE HELD AS "RUM-RUNNERS"

Essex, Ma., Nov. 3 (A.P.)—Three Haverhill men were arrested here today on charges of illegal transportation of whiskey after they had jumped from their car when it stalled on the trolley tracks and had led deputy sheriffs a chase through fields and over fences. They did not surrender until the deputies had fired several shots. They gave their names as George Sebalkin, Abraham Sebalkin and Myer Frideland.

Governor Fuller was requested today to investigate a charge that "men employed in the maintenance of way department of the Boston Elevated are working on the estate of Mr. Stanley B. Miller, trustee of the Boston Elevated Railway."

This request was made in a letter to the Governor by former State Representative Thomas A. Niland of East Boston, who declared that the charge was made "by two citizens of this community of the highest standing."

Mrs. Arthur D. Potter of Greenfield, president of State Federation of Woman's Clubs, attended the first meeting of the new club institute in Boston today.

B. & M. SERVICE PROTESTED

Curtailment of service on the Medford branch of the Boston & Maine Railroad was protested today at a hearing before the Public Utility Commission by Mayor Edward H. Larkin, City Solicitor Jaspar N. John, bank officials, representatives of the local Chamber of Commerce and 40 commuters who urged the commission to restore the old schedule.

The curtailment took place September 25. One train to Boston in the forenoon and two evening trains to Medford were dropped.

Figures showing losses not only on that particular branch, but over the entire system,in passengers were produced by Frederick T. Grant, representing the road.

CLUBWOMEN AT NEW INSTITUTE

Forty-five presidents from all over the State attended the first meeting of the newly-created club institute department of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs at the Hotel Vendome today.

"I expected only a few at this first meeting and was highly gratified to see such a large response to our invitation," Mrs. Thomas J. Walker said. "This proves our contention that an institute for teaching club presidents how to run the machinery of their clubs is needed and wanted." Mrs. Walker of Whitinsville is chairman of the institute.

INSANE SLAYER IN HOSPITAL

Declared to be violently insane, Guiseppi Fedenza, 37, of East Boston, slayer of 76-year-old Alessandro Caputto last Friday morning, was removed from Charles Street Jail to the State Hospital at Bridgewater today after an examination by alienists. Judge Fosdick, in Superior Court, ordered the commitment to the hospital.

At the time of his arrest, after Caputto was killed, Fedenza said he acted in self-defense because of a poison plot against him. After going to jail to await a hearing he became so violent that the alienists were called in by the jail physician.

100,000 'SALLIES' START 'SIEGE' OF BRITAIN

Glasgow, Nov. 3 (A.P.)—A night of prayer with 71-year-old Gen. Bramwell Booth of the Salvation Army on the platform for five and one-half hours has launched a great nation wide "Salvation Siege" for the conversion of Britain.

More than 2,000 men and women filled the city hall here during remarkable scenes of fervor and religious devotion. One thousand other meetings were held simultaneously throughout the country with 100,000 members of the Salvation Army participating.

The "siege" will last for a month and meetings will be held in "the enemy's territory," such as public houses and other drink emporiums. Tanks and armored cars, from which Salvation Army musicians will sound their message will run through the country.

SHOWERS SAVE MAINE VILLAGE FROM BLAZE

Biddeford, Me., Nov. 3 (A. P.)—Slight showers today saved the village of Goodwins Mills from a conflagration. Sparks from the burning farm buildings of Roy Burbank fired the roofs of many houses in the village. Help was asked from Biddeford and Saco departments. The showers took care of the roof blazes, leaving firemen to fight the farmhouse fire.

begins the

Greatest of his Great Historical Novels

"THE SUN HAWK"

Courageous love pitted against the intrigue of a corrupt court

"THE SUN HAWK" blazes a trail of love, intrigue, and adventure. A stirring romance of Frontenac's cavaliers, the violent, stubborn, lovable French adventurer. The hero, an unknown English lad, handsome, fearless. From Turkish flames and slaughter he rescues a lovely daughter of the French court—only to see her....? This fascinating tale unfolds against the background of the court of Louis XIV and the opening of the New World.

Robert W. Chambers' historical novels are considered his finest work. The SUN HAWK is the greatest of them all. Don't miss the opening installment in the November Pictorial.

The prize novel "Rebellion." A gay story by Dorothy Speare: More good fiction. "The Trouble with Women," Beauty Hints, six Home Making articles, 12 pages of fashions, a wealth of interesting reading.

All these and much more for 15 cents

Is Marriage Doomed? Is Lasting Love Possible?

Dr. Will Durant, outstanding philosopher and popular lecturer whose "Story of Philosophy" is the best seller of non-fiction books, writes for the November Pictorial. Read the "BREAKDOWN OF MARRIAGE." It is a fine, courageous analysis of the institution of marriage, its history, its meaning, the repeated failure of many modern marriages. He shows us why it seems to be on the verge of breaking down—why it must not be allowed to break down. What he has to say is new and startlingly candid.

From Brooklyn Slums to a Beverly Hills Mansion

How does it feel to win a Beauty Contest?—to sign a movie contract?—to tramp the streets from studio to studio?

The quicksands of Hollywood are strewn with girls who have been called "the most beautiful in the world."

In the November Pictorial Jim Tully tells the fascinating life story of Clara Bow, the exception whose genius and fire lifted her to stardom. A modern fairy story, sad, gay, fascinating. Be sure you don't miss this story of a modern Nell Gwynn in the November Pictorial.)

FARM BLOC ON MELLON'S SIDE IN TAX CUT

Washington, Nov. 3 (I.N.S.).—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon today announced that he intended to "stand pat" on his recommendation to the House Ways and Means Committee, limiting a tax reduction to $225,000,000. The Secretary is undisturbed by the demands made before the committee for greater reductions than he has advocated. Members of the congressional farm bloc—long at odds with Secretary Mellon—today came to his defense. With an unbroken line of spokesmen for organized business urging the House Ways and Means Committee, now holding public hearings, to recommend a tax cut as high as $400,000,000 emphatic statements of mid-Western congressmen furnished the first evidence of a coalition to fight this program.

While farm bloc members generally would not commit themselves to a Mellon plan in detail, they were inclined to accept his figure of $225,000,000 as the maximum in any tax reduction program.

"We had better keep a full treasury," said Rep. Dickinson (R.), of Iowa, titular leader of the House farm bloc group. "Unless farm conditions are bettered, we may find a big surplus necessary to start extensive public works to prevent unemployment."

Women Make Plea for Income Tax Reduction

Washington, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Pleading on from its discussion of corporation income tax rates, the House Ways and Means Committee today before it today consideration of the individual income levies, although there have been but few indications that any change in these rates will be authorized except possibly those in the higher brackets.

The witness list for the day, however, was the longest during the present tax hearings, and included the names of two women the first time in the memory of committee clerks that women have sought to present their views to a congressional committee on the subject of tax reduction.

The women, Lena M. Phillips of New York City, and Martha L. Connole of East St. Louis, Ill., were listed as spokesmen for the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

School Cook, Out for Newton Mayor, Has Grandstand Slogan

"Better grandstands for high school games," is the slogan of Joseph McInnis, cook and butler at the DeWitt Clinton Hobbard School, Newton, who is again a candidate for Mayor of Newton.

Two years ago he took out nomination papers but did not file them. He assured a Boston Evening American reporter that he will file his papers this time.

"If I am elected Mayor of Newton," he said, "there will be no repitition of the accident of last spring when a stand at the Newton High School grounds collapsed, injuring thirty persons."

In the meantime Edwin O. Childs, who has been Mayor of Newton almost since the Ark landed on Mt. Ararat, is assuming an "I should worry" attitude.

MOVIE CLASSIC IN NEW STORY BY WRIGHT

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS, Motion Picture Editor of Universal Services.

Los Angeles, Nov. 2.—Al Rogell, Hollywood director, never had any hankering to make an independent production until he read "God and the Groceryman." After that he was willing to pawn his wife's jewels, sell the family flivver and go in debt the rest of his natural life if only Harold Bell Wright would consent to part with the film rights to his "best seller."

Mr. Wright, now in New York, where "God and the Groceryman" is being dramatized, listened to the impetuous Hollywoodian's pipe, largely because Mr. Rogell has just finished "The Shepherd of the Hills," another Wright novel, for First National. Furthermore, he granted an option on his novel. No author could do more.

SEQUEL TO 'SHEPHERD.'

With the tone in his voice of a preacher giving a sermon, Mr. Rogell outlined to me just why "God and the Groceryman" would be such a knockout as a motion picture.

It is a sequel to "The Shepherd of the Hills," with the boy of the earlier novel a middle-aged man in the later one. Also, it is a discussion of life in 1927 against the 1905 date of "The Shepherd of the Hills."

While Mr. Rogell believes the release will be First National, he is sure and he isn't worrying. That's the kind of a speculator he is.

"THE TRAIL OF '98."

I am not claiming to be psychic—there are too many of these gals who prophesy the future in movies now, but I have a sneaking suspicion Norma Shearer is going to be very good in "The Traveling Saleslady." It's the sort of comedy-drama, like "Her Secretary," which she does specially well. She began work yesterday and her leading man is none other than the blond Ralph Forbes.

They tell me out at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios that Mr. Forbes is one of their most promising leading men. He has been tied up for the best part of six months making "The Trail of '98."

WONDERS ABOUT KING.

By the by, after Douglas Fairbanks' picture, "The Gaucho," leaves Grauman's Chinese Theatre—and that, my dears, is some time in 1928—Clarence Brown's picture will probably be shown at the Grauman House. Just gossip, of course, but of interest here, where every director does his best to get into this theatre.

The old familiar slogan, "Do your Christmas shopping early," needn't affect Norma Talmadge so much as her public will think it concerned, for she doesn't start on "A Woman Disputed" until after the holidays and Henry King will direct her.

Ever since Mr. King came home from New York, inquisitive Hollywood has wondered when he would start on "My Woman," scheduled as his first United Artists picture.

That is now a different question, my children, for Norma wants Henry King to direct her—and Norma usually gets what she wants. Gilbert Roland will play opposite her—his third Talmadge picture. As for "My Woman," well, it looks to me as if John Considine will have to find another director for it.

These days you can be a Sherlock Holmes without the disguise. All you have to do is to walk across a film lot and use the eyes God gave you. Antonio Moreno, looking very well, let me tell you, conversing with Robert Kane, gave me an idea. Tony is the lead opposite Estelle Taylor, in "The Whip Woman." I am right, Don Alvarado, originally chosen, is too much Miss Taylor's type.

GINSBURG SEEKS SEAT IN COUNCIL FROM WARD 15

S. Jason Ginsburg, brother of former Representative Bernard Ginsburg, candidate for City Council in Ward 14, has pledged himself to work for a municipal building for Ward 14 to include among other things a gymnasium, swimming pool branch public library and health unit; for improved and repaired streets; for improved accommodations for a five-cent fare from Mattapan square along the entire stretch of Blue Hill avenue through Columbia road to City Point; a white way along the entire stretch of Blue Hill avenue from Payson street to the railroad bridge at Mattapan square.

COLLECTOR PAYS $4,200 FOR "ROBINSON CRUSOE"

New York, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—A copy of the first issue of the first edition of Thomas Gray's "Elegy in a Country Church Yard" has been sold to Charles Sessler for $4,200 in an auction of books and autographs from the library of Jerome Kern, the composer. A set of first editions of Defoe's "Robinson Crusoe" was bought by Mr. Sessler for $4,200.

The total collection, some 350 items, disposed of by the Anderson Galleries, brought $28,110.

$1,000,000,000 PAID OFF ON THE PUBLIC DEBT

Washington, Nov. 3 (I.N.S.).—With an interest saving of about $42,000,000 annually, the American public debt was reduced $1,151,000,000 in the year ending November 1, the Treasury announced today.

Secretary Mellon's debt reduction program calls for retirement or refunding of securities amounting to $3,797,723,000 in the next eighteen months.

Present indications point to wiping all the Liberty bonds off the books before 1935. Officials predicted that the public debt would be cut a billion dollars in the year ending next June.

How to Reduce Varicose Veins

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way

Many people have become despondent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy that will reduce swollen veins and bunches.

If you will get a two-ounce original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) at any first-class drug store and apply it night and morning as directed you will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

Moone's Emerald Oil is a harmless, yet most powerful germicide and pure vegetable dye that a very long time. Indeed, so powerful is Emerald Oil that old chronic sores and ulcers are often entirely healed and anyone who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded. All druggists sell bats of it.

There seems to be prosperity throughout the country.

Mr. Edison says European nations "will war on us sooner or later." Perhaps they WON'T. By fighting as they might save ten thousand millions they owe us. But to cross the ocean and conquer even one narrow strip of this country would cost more than the ten billions they might save. And they can save that sum more economically by not paying us.

Europe, however, might cost this country many billions by one single air raid, if the United States should remain unprotected in the air.

Japanese unable to read or write are allowed to vote for the first time. The illiterate, more than others, need the vote. If their government makes them happy, they vote FOR it. If it makes them unhappy, they vote AGAINST it. That's the essence of voting. Therefore, it was wise to let women vote. They won't accept excuses, or torchlight parades, in place of results.

Care of Babies

This baby has never had a day's sickness and never a cross or fretful spell that lasted an hour. And what do you suppose is responsible for this healthy, happy condition? Not diet, for he has eaten just about anything and everything a child could eat. Not drugs, for he has not been dosed with opiates; he has never had a drop of paregoric. Nor has his sensible mother ever made him taste castor oil. Yet his nerves are sound and his little bowels are strong, and when he does seem the least restless or wakeful, or out of sorts—or likely to be—his mother has him all serene again in ten or fifteen minutes!

The secret of this complete freedom from the many ills and upsets so common to infants? Plain old-fashioned Castoria. A million and more mothers swear by Castoria, and no wonder! A few drops and an approaching fever, colic, diarrhea or constipation seems to vanish in thin air. Castoria is purely vegetable; that is why physicians tell parents they may use it freely with children of any age—the youngest infant. And how they love the taste!

One word of warning: get the pure, real Castoria. Fletcher's Castoria is the original. It is the kind doctors specify. And with every bottle comes a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies" that is worth its weight in gold to any mother or prospective mother. So, remember: tell your druggist you wish Fletcher's Castoria.

RADIO DIALOG

by WILLIAM HAY

WE have just received a publicity release from the inaudible broadcasting system. The "Simplitone," sponsored by the European Habit Reducing Company, will be heard tonight playing five numbers under the direction of Walter Meow. From previous experiences we know most of the numbers will be zero.

In addition the "Midnight Male" quartet will sing several pieces without request. As they are good, they will not be requested to leave until at least one song (as own choice) unless they can get some pianist who never heard of them, the quartet will sing unaccompanied, as usual.

In the opening number of the "hour," the orchestra will feature, "This is the last number, there ain't no more." Advertising directors state this will hold the audience through another song.

Betty Crocker will broadcast on "apples." As is well known the apple is said to have been a favorite fruit in the English army until declared un-American. So Betty will sing and dance in a pantomime number to induce folks to eat more apples.

The first act of the underweight opera company will be sent tonight unless the studio catches fire (Ethics of the press demand we shouldn't publish naughty sugges tions but this slipped through).

As the curtain shoots up with a bang causing the studio director to wonder who is trying to smash the window the strained and limping bars of "Old Sweet Home" are heard. The first act opens within the coffee grounds of Sir Isaac Statler's back yard in Chelsea. All is muddy. This indicates a thickening of the soup.

Act two starts, then stops because the traffic lights go red.

* * *

In the energetic exercises accompanying Halloween someone broke our antenna wire, which necessitates going out into the yard and connecting two ends of wire. We promise to attend to this

KNOTS MIX UP RADIO SNARL

Washington, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Untangling the radio snarl is not an engineering problem alone. Religious, political and legal complications beset the Federal commissioners in their struggle to bring order out of chaos in the broadcasting field.

The fitting into 89 wave lengths of 70 broadcasting stations so that there will be a minimum of interference, seems essentially an engineer's job. Orestes H. Caldwell, New York member of the commission and a radio technician of note, says a competent engineer might sit down at his library table and evolve in a short time a workable assignment of broadcasting stations based upon elimination and time sharing

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Boston's Smart Set Soon to Receive Some Most Distinguished Visitors

BOSTON'S VERY MOST UPPER CRUSTY SET IS SOON TO HAVE AN opportunity to welcome some distinguished visitors. They are Mrs. Stephen Van Rensselaer Thayer of Boston, New York and Paris, the Viscount Roederer of Paris and his charming Viscountess, formerly Miss Julia Thayer. They are coming on the first visit here of the Roederers since their marriage in Paris more than a year ago. The three will be house guests of their kinswoman, Mrs. Clarence Ransom Edwards, of Doneroving in Westwood.

THE LOVELY THAYER TRIO OF DAUGHTERS, THE MISSES ALICE, Mary and Julia, have each contracted important Continental alliances as was to be expected since their mother, Mrs. Thayer, has for several years made her home principally in Paris. The first is now the Countess Louis de Montgomery, the second is the Countess Bertrand Comminges and the third the Viscountess Roederer, aforementioned. It wasn't so very many moons ago that the Viscountess Roederer, as Miss Thayer, visited here and made a distinct impression with her blonde beauty even in such an assemblage as the Assembly Ball of that season.

BELONGING AS THEY DO ON THE SOCIAL SUMMITS, IT FOLLOWS that entertainment here for this distinguished visiting trio will be of the superlative sort. Hostesses blue of blood and of important place in the social scheme will endeavor to make their stay pleasant. The Van Rensselaer line brings its descent from one Kiliaen Van Rensselaer, patroon of Albany in the New Netherlands days, and as for the other family lines, they are of first string importance. Mrs. Thayer and her daughter have many prominent connections here.

IF MADAME WOULD HAVE HER SOCIAL REGISTER PROPERLY decked out as befits its status, she should enclose it in one of those handsome colored leather cases to be purchased at the Disabled Ex-Service Men's Exchange. I believe it was Mrs. Timothee Adamowska, devoted heart and soul to the cause of the disabled ex-service man, who first suggested this clever maniplation of suede into a beautifully colored cover for the important small volume that has a place on so many many desks.

THE COVERS MAY BE PURCHASED, IN COLORS TO MATCH ANY DECORATIVE SCHEME, AT THE RITZ-CARLETON HOTEL on Monday next when a sale for the Exchange goes on, thanks to the Hotel's generosity. Also may be purchased beautiful scarves, made by disabled ex-service men in faraway California, and fashioned with a delicacy and deftness quite astonishing. Then there are amusing toys, and all the other articles with which the exchange is so marvelously stocked and which the disabled fashion so dextrously.

IT IS PERFECTLY MIRACULOUS WHAT A CLEVER DECORATOR CAN DO WITH A FAMILIAR SCENE. HE CAN give it a new and entirely different aspect, so that it bursts upon the eye panoplyed in strange exotic beauty. The handsome Louis Fourteenth ballroom of the Hotel Somerset, for example. Boston society knows it well, having danced on its polished floor at countless debutante balls or looked on at the same from its rows of gilt and rose chairs. A clever decorator waved his wand to create a new mise en scene for Miss Ruth Swift's debutante ball last evening.

TO THE BALLROOM'S PREVAILING MOTIF OF GOLD AND ROSE WITH CREAM WHITE WERE ADDED ENORMOUS wreaths of green festooned against panels with broad bone ribbons. Tall, slender cedars made a dense shield of green as background for the receiving line—Mr. and Mrs. George H. Swift and their daughter. For the sitting out room the decorator borrowed of old Castile—its awinged balconies, its tinkling fountains and its gaily painted furniture. Miss Swift is one of the fortunate buds striving mightily for the coveted full membership in the Junior League, having been chosen for the league provisional list.

MISS LORRAINE LIGGETT

Boston girl, is a team captain in the campaign to raise funds for the Free Hospital for Women.

MISS BETTY BIRD AT A HUNTS AT AFFAIR IN SOMETHING ELSE THAN RIDING kit is a most unusual vision. Likewise, is the same true of other ardent sportswomen, such as Mrs. "Freddy" Ayer or Miss Alice Thorndike. Yesterday at the Hounds Trails at Millwood these three were to be seen in street attire, for the hound and not the horse was preeminent. Miss Betty Bird and her younger sister, Miss Patricia Bird, were pretty to see, the first in black and white, the second in gray.

MRS. LYMAN RICE WORE AN ENORMOUS CLUSTER OF ORCHIDS IN DEEP PINKISH purple to glorify her smart brown wrap. Mrs. Adnah Neyhart was in golden brown, and so was Mrs. Augustus F. Goodwin, her costume the acme of simplicity and smartness. Mrs. L Tucker Burr, Jr., wore the handsome dark green riding habit, with its tan collar that is the formal hunts "pink" for the Dedham. Miss Dorothy Neyhart was in riding kit, of course. How else forsooth should this youthful M. F. H. appear at such an affair?

EVERY NEARBY HUNT HAD out an enthusiastic set, the Norfolk, the Millwood, the Groton, the Myopia, the Dedham. And visitors from further away added to the scene—from Fairfield and Westchester Hounds, and from the Jacobs Hill Hunt. Mrs. Webster Knight, 2d, of Providence, with the Jacobs Hill set was smartly turned out. She wore a deep red rose tucked into the soft gray fur of her wrap and her chapeau was of jet black.

THE EVENT OF THE DAY was the "Hounds Trails." For several miles round about the John N. Bowditch farm these clever animals followed the scent. I believe Groton's hounds won, but other canine wonders from all the other hunts were well rewarded with reds and blues in the various events. It was a perfect day. Bright sunlight shone down on the countless acres that make up the Bowditch domaine that is another Willowdale in its natural beauty and fit setting for a hunting function.

New Harvard Plays Horween In Right Chance Taking Pays

Referee Dave Barry Gets Long Count Football Hurdling

By NICK FLATLEY

HARVARD, is is announced, will start its second team against Penn. That is quite an announcement; the broadcast of the fact that there is some real spirit and progress across the Charles. Harvard didn't have any second team to speak of, a few weeks ago.

Nick Flatley

Improvement on the Horween squad has been so rapid that the boys are ready to try the Rockne system. Taking chances is the one and only way to pull a losing team out of the dumps. Where the veterans cannot come to life, the kids always have a chance. They are not discouraged by dreams of former glory and sorrow for their sad lot. They want to make good, and tear in accordingly.

It is quite modern to announce the second team as the starting lineup. Gives the enemy the inferiority complex, according to theory, and helps the team that can get away with it in a tough game. If the subs grab a break or two, and do not get smitten, the big boys can step in to mop up, after dummy has weakened the enemy ranks.

Harvard has never leaned toward putting sophs on varsity football teams. The older athletes were figured the best, because of training and experience. Mister Horween, up against a losing cause, is changing that. And getting results. He has six or seven youngsters on his squad who will probably be great players in a year or two, because of the practice they will gather this year.

A wise coach wrecks tradition and everything else when the occasion demands. The Harvard team demanded some such method. It can't hurt, and it will help, in the future, if not immediately.

Bill Carrigan did that with his Red Sox last Summer. He lost a million ball games, but he found out what he had in the kid ranks. The world expects him to come up with several young stars next year. Mister Horween is doing the same thing.

WITH WALTER JOHNSON GONE, AND COBB AND SPEAKER ON THE VERGE OF RETIREMENT, NEW PRESIDENT BARNARD IS LIKELY TO HAVE A TOUGH TIME RECOGNIZING HIS LEAGUE.

Yale would like to have that Georgia game tossed out on account of mutrial or something.

DAVE BARRY WILL NOT FORGET LONG COUNT

DAVE BARRY, referee of the long count, will always remember the Tunney-Dempsey fight. Dave was handed the South Side cheer when he appeared in the ring in Chicago the other night. He was right in his old home town, but that didn't keep the boys from passing along the finest kind of raspberry.

The boys counted slowly and solemnly up to fourteen, and then did it all over again, ad infinitum, as long as Dave lingered in the ring. They will repeat the process each time he shows. He will soon retire. Mortal man is not constructed to stand that sort of thing.

Referee Barry acted honestly. His mistake was unconscious. But there is no justice on a jury of the public. A popular idol was wrecked on account of Mister Barry's count, and so Dave will hear of it until the day he dies.

The commotion, however, must please Tex Rickard. It shows that his great money magnet, Dempsey, is still the darling of the gang. It will encourage him as he fixes his mental plans for the next battle between Tunney and the Tiger. For Tex will have another, if it can possibly be done. And he has a way of doing things.

That football captain who is the college barber can be excused for slipping from behind. He should be able to shave the sidelines.

FOOTBALL HURDLING WAS HARD ON THE EYES

A WOLLASTON sideliner writes in to ask if Vincent Stevenson, the former Penn quarterback, wasn't a hurdler, and responsible for the removal of open-field hurdling from the code.

Far as we can find out, Vince could do everything on a football field, good and bad, so he probably hopped over prospective tacklers now and then by way of variety.

No one was to blame for the fare injuries that hurdling caused. So many noses were broken and eyes badly hurt that officials had to rule the practice out in the very early days of reform.

We have just been talking with Bob Guild, who played with Harvard in the last game with Penn, in 1905. That WAS quite a battle, with a large casualty list. Some of the details, in these columns, may interest you tomorrow.

Donohue Will Probably Discover Fish Swim

New London, Ct., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Amateur boxing is "running wild" in Connecticut, in the opinion of State Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue, who has investigated reports that amateurs are being paid for their contests. Mr. Donohue is president of the National Boxing Commission.

Professional boxing struck the down-grade last Winter and amateur boxing, so-called, came in with a rush this past Summer and bids fair to keep up, often with as many as four meetings in various parts of the State.

"I have received indirect evidence that amateur boxers are being paid," said Commissioner Donohue, "but until I can prove it I am powerless. An amateur who pays becomes a professional and comes under my jurisdiction. Connecticut is the only State with a commission in which amateurs are not subject to control."

TUNNEY WILL TRAIN AT BRANT LAKE IN FUTURE

Glen Falls, N. Y., Nov 3 (A P).—Gene Tunney, heavyweight ring champion, will establish the training camp at Brant Lake, if his next fight is held in the Eastern section of the United States.

The champion made this statement today as he passed through Glens Falls on his way to New York, where he is to spend a week or ten days. He has been visiting the Brant Lake camp of David Fitzgerald of this city.

THREE QUAKERS of Penn who face Harvard Saturday. Hake is a tackle and Wascoloris and Pine, who hails from Natick, are backs.

Harvard Leaves for Battle With Penn

Harvard will close active preparation for the Penn game this afternoon, when the Crimson football forces will gather for the last time at the Stadium before they leave for Philadelphia.

Coach Horween plans an hour offensive drill, polishing up the Crimson attack.

By nightfall the Crimson grid team will be on the rails headed for New York where they will spend the night, leaving for Franklin Field tomorrow.

Tomorrow afternoon Horween plans an hour of practice on the gridiron at Franklin Field and then will take his forces out to the suburbs of Philadelphia until game time.

Penn has been broadcast as the team with the most deceptive attack in the East. This title Harvard grants its opponents but the Crimson will not be far overshadowed in the category of backfield array.

The Crimson coaches have had many conferences during the past week, and have decided that nothing will be held over for the Brown game. Horween wants this Penn game, and is frankly stating so.

HORWEEN STANDS PAT.

Horween still makes a criss-cross puzzle out of his probable lineup. His latest move is to disregard his plan of starting his second team, an idea he has been cherishing all week. He intends to stand pat on the varsity incumbents, with a chance here and there.

From the showing this week Harvard will lineup on Saturday with Hep Strong and Jim Douzias at end, Captain Pratt and Barrett at tackle, Dan Simonds and Ralph Stewart at guard, Bell at center, with a backfield composed of Gordon Brown, Jo Potter, Joe Crosby and Tommy Mason. Stewart seems to have displaced Parkinson at guard, otherwise the team is the regular team which started the Indiana game.

Horween is reticent to inquiries regarding his starting eleven. He will reply as far as to state that given time is the only important moment to announce a team. On the last two Saturdays he called this stunt starting Art Leavitt at quarter instead Dairymple and Tommy Mason and Jo Potter in backs against Indiana.

Every member of the squad will make the trip including Sam Lewis, an end who is still recuperating from a leg injury.

The full roster of those leaving for Philly includes centers, Bell, Bigelow and Turner; guards, Simonds, Parkinson, Fripp, O'Connell, Shapiro and Stewart; tackles, Pratt, Clark, Barrett, Hitch, Lewis and Davis, ends, Douzias, Strong, Lewis, Lord, Hake, Forbes, Coombs, Pucci, Bigelow and Merrill, quarters Potter, Brown, H. Ritter and Kelly and backs, Holbrook, Davis, Potter, Mason, Guarnaccia, Donahy, Moore and Harper.

Other officials in the party include Athletic Director Lou Bingham, and Coaches Horween, Dunne, Buell, Carney, Clark and Kennard.

The full Crimson squad will leave by midnight tomorrow both by water and land routes.

CARDS MAY LOSE MANAGER

St. Louis, Nov. 2 (A P).—Don O'Farrell may not manage the St. Louis Cards in 1928, although he probably will remain in a Cardinal uniform, President Sam Breadon announced today.

"I do not want to spoil a good catcher by keeping on his shoulders the responsibilities of management," Breadon said. "Perhaps the management worries had something to do with O'Farrell having an unfortunate year.

"Measured by results, which is the only fair thing to do, you must consider O'Farrell a success as manager, for he led the team through all its troubles and won more games than the club won in 1926."

But spoiling a great catcher by putting him in the business is not my way of having a leader. It is easy to get a manager. There are lots of them, but it is difficult and impossible, to get a good catcher. I replace one with a better. That is the reason I am unwilling to take away from O'Farrell the responsibilities of the catcher's position."

Bill McKechnie O'Farrell's assistant last season, has been mentioned as O'Farrell's possible successor.

ARMOUR TRAILS HAGEN BY 4 STROKES

Cedar Crest Country Club, Dallas, Nov. 3 (A P).—Walter Hagen, defending champion stroked his way to a four hole lead over Tommy Armour, open champion of the United States and Canada, in the morning round of their quarter final match in the professional Golfers' Association tournament here today.

Hagen was the first to lose a hole when he made a bad out from a trap at number three, but Armour bagied the hole back to his opponent at the fourth, where Tommy laid himself an unplayable stymie. Before the Scotchman could steady himself after this mishap, Hagen had taken three more holes and a commanding lead.

Tommy braced and took the ninth after Hagen had missed a two-foot try and captured the twelfth, but "the Haig" was two up again at the thirteenth and finished strong with a 16-foot putt for a birdie to win the seventeenth and another long one to win the eighteenth with a par three.

The cards:

Armour—

In ...	5	4	3	5	3	5	6	4	—37—73

Joe Turnesa of Elmsford, New York, and Gene Sarazen of New York, fought a good middle match throughout the morning round finishing the eastern 18 holes.

John Golden of Lyons, N. J. after losing six holes in succession, evened his match with Francis Ouimet of Wianstead, W., and finished all square.

Al Espinosa, Chicago, at the end of the morning round had a three hole lead over Mortimer Jones, Tacoma, Wash. At one point in the match Jones was 6 down, but took the last three holes to end the eighteen 3 down.

Carrigan Praises New Braves Manager

Lewiston, Me., Nov. 3.—Bill Carrigan, manager of the Red Sox, today said that he was pleased to hear that Jack Slattery would manage the Boston Braves during the 1928 season.

"Jack is a wonderful man for the Braves and for Boston," went on smiling Bill.

"I have known Jack for a long time and he is one of the best I've known by all thoroughly, too.

"I personally wish Jack all the success in the world during the coming season in the National League."

Leo Daley and B. C. Nine Congratulate Slattery

"The appointment of Jack Slattery as manager of the Braves is an excellent one," said Head Coach Leo Daley of Boston College today.

"He will have the support of the Boston College faculty, students and alumni and I am confident that he will be as successful in his new berth as he was at the Heights."

A letter of congratulations, signed by every player on the B. C. baseball squad last Spring, was forwarded to the new Braves' pilot this morning.

No action has been taken toward appointing a new Knights baseball coach to succeed Slattery, but the Rev. Father Mattimore, faculty director of athletics, said that some member would probably be named in the next two weeks.

TUFTS FRESHMEN PLAY DEAN ACADEMY TODAY

Experience as Player, Scout and Coach Makes Him Ideal Leader for the 1928 Braves

By NICK FLATLEY

Boston is giving loud and sincere baseball cheers.

A native son has been elected to manage the Braves, and Boston fans are happy. They believe that Jack Slattery, Dave Bancroft's successor, is a real baseball Moses, who can lead the Tribe out of the second division desert, up to the heights.

The new manager will start off with the whole city back of him, and his Braves will become immensely popular, if they step out and do a thing. And they should perform under Slattery.

He has been through the baseball racket, from the sandlots to the big leagues. He has coached and scouted, and always with success. His record with college teams shows that he has the rare gift of passing along his own knowledge and experience. His success as a scout stamps him as one of the few veterans who can observe baseball talent in the bud. The manager of a second division team needs these two qualifications above everything else. The fact that "Slats" has them, had more than anything else to do with his selection.

There was wild competition for the job. Hundreds of candidates applied, and many of them had baseball backing of the strongest sort. Tris Speaker, Ty Cobb, the Killifer brothers, Jack Dunn and a flock of other notables were seriously considered.

FANS ADMIRE "SLATS."

They will discover before long that it is the most popular move they ever made. Slattery is in right with the fans. The Boston boys know baseball. They can point out the weak spots on a club, playing or policy, as well as any expert.

They have been cheering for Slattery ever since Dave Bancroft was relieved to Brooklyn. They wanted no star, who would get so much money for his name that the club couldn't afford to pay players for a season or so. They were a bit chary, in the light of experience, of managers who would sign on the dotted line, and then shrug shoulders and complain about lack of funds when things went the wrong way.

The Braves needed a thorough baseball man, a student and a disciplinarian, a bird who wouldn't be discouraged by misfortune, or sit back and play the string out because he had nothing much to work with.

The club grabbed the combina-

HOT FIGHT AMONG SCHOOLS

Lawrence, Brockton and Fitchburg Are Unbeaten Teams in This State

By JOE CASHMAN

Picking the State schoolboy football champion promises to be much easier this Fall than for several seasons.

But three teams remain in the race at the present writing and two of these, Fitchburg and Brockton, will come together in the Shoe City, Saturday, thus reducing the field to two, the winner of this clash and Lawrence.

Lawrence engages none of its rivals or title honors, but the Devlin-trained machine has already played Commerce and Cambridge Latin and on Saturday faces Newton, which will meet Fitchburg on November 12, making it easy to get a line on the ability of the Merrimack Valley champions.

Everett, despite its defeats by forfeit as a result of the DiMott wrangle, is still undefeated in the opinion of the majority of schoolboy followers and if the subordinates go through the remainder of the season without suffering a setback, many will insist that the Gildea eleven is as much entitled to the championship as any other outfit.

We don't feel that Everett should lose its undefeated rating because of the presence of DiMott in six games. The Gildea charges won all of those tilts, except that with Newton, by big margins, and would have finished in front in every instance whether or not DiMott had been playing.

LAWRENCE'S FINE CHANCE.

Everett, however, was extended to the limit to beat Newton, 13 to 0, and if Lawrence, which beat Brockton by a bigger margin than Everett, with DiMott playing, does better against the Garden City athletes, which is probable, it must be rated stronger than the big Red aggregation, provided, of course, it goes through the season undefeated.

If Brockton finishes without a loss, it will be more or less difficult to rank the team, unless it is alone in the undefeated class. The Shoe City sleven didn't do as well against Brookline as either Lawrence or Everett, but it has beaten such teams as Salem, Malden, Taunton and, if it can take Fitchburg and Manchester, N. H., its next two opponents into camp, it will deserve as much consideration as any of its rivals.

Malden and Taunton were undefeated until they ran up against Coach Roberts' eleven, and Fitchburg and Manchester still boast of clean slates.

Any eleven that can defeat four teams fighting to keep their season's record unblemished on four successive Saturdays is a champion in every sense of the word and Brockton will be entitled to the crown if it can perform such a stunt.

BROCKTON IN RUNNING.

If Fitchburg whips Brockton, its game with Newton the following week will offer a fine opportunity to compare the team with both Everett and Lawrence.

In our humble opinion, Brockton and Lawrence will be at the top of the heap at the close of the season, Lawrence, on paper, will probably appear to be the stronger but Brockton will have faced much stiffer opposition over the season's stretch and be deserving of the title.

School Notes

Commercial Alum has a stranglehold on school athletes in Haverhill, from all accounts. The high school basketball team lost something like $1,100 last season, and Dr. Benson, a member of the school board, suggests that the diamond sport be dropped next season because it is a financial failure.

Are school sports in Haverhill forfeed mainly to make money? We don't think so. Instead of dropping baseball, the citizens of Haverhill should drop Mr. Benson right out of public office. And that's what they probably will do.

Latin School, undefeated in City League competition this season, faces its hardest test to date tomorrow, when it tackles Trade Eleven at Newton Park. The Purple should win, but it will have no walkover.

Malden made a big hit with scholastic sport followers by signing Pitchburg to take Everett's place on its football schedule. This game at the Pearl street stadium, Malden, Nov. 12, will give local fans their first and only opportunity to see the great Fitchburg outfit in action.

Coach Jimmy Gildea deserves a better break. He is a great coach and has one of the best teams in the State, DiMott or no. The eleven may yet be the generally recognized State champion.

"O' MIKE McTIGUE can now retire to a ringside seat and watch younger men carry on," said Mr. Boston today. "Now that he has been knocked out in a round by Mickey Walker, I believe Ol' Mike will admit that this game of box fighting is for those who carry the torch of Flaming Youth.

"A colorful fellow is this Mike McTigue. For close on to 15 years he has traveled the pugilistic highways, putting up good, bad and indifferent fights.

"Ol' Mike was a good manager as well as a fighter of note. Back in 1923 he was boxing under the direction of Joe Jacobs of New York.

"I think I'll take a little trip to Ireland to see the ol' folks and while over there I may take part in a scrap or two," he told Jacobs.

"McTigue made the trip alone. He was smart enough to induce Battling Siki, the wild man from Senegal, to journey to Dublin to defend his world's light heavyweight championship on March 17, 1923.

"No one seemed surprised when McTigue was awarded the decision at the end of 20 rounds. One hardly could expect an Irish referee to render a verdict against Ol' Mike on St. Patrick's Day.

"McTIGUE was never popular as champion. He wasn't anxious to risk his title and when he did he was over-cared.

"One night I bumped into Joe Jacobs in one of those hot beer joints on Broadway.

"Mike and I are going down to Columbus, Georgia, to pick up a grand for fighting a kid named Stribling,' said Jacobs. 'It's like taking candy from a baby as we're carting along our own referee.'

"I had been in Columbus one year with the Braves and knew the temper of the people there.

"'Don't be too sure you will have things all your own way,' I warned. 'Stribling is a Southerner and must have plenty of followers. I have known Southern gentlemen to get excited when they have been backing a man.'

"But Jacobs only laughed. A week or so later he wasn't in quite as happy a mood as he left Columbus under a special guard. Striking according to the Southern gentlemen, had beaten McTigue only to get a decision. Ol' Mike had to push his way past shotguns as he left the ring that night.

"Stribling proved there was no fluke to his victory when he came back and defeated McTigue again in Newark. As no decisions are allowed in Jersey, Ol' Mike and a newspaper decision. Later McTigue dropped his championship to Paul Berlenbach. In that fight McTigue had the best of the entire fifteen rounds. Tex Paul on the canvas during one stage of the proceedings. McTigue's unpopularity was so great that the officials gave him the worst of it.

"STRIPPED of his championship, it would seem as though Ol' Mike was all washed up on the pugilistic shoals. At this stage of his career, he went under the management of Jimmy Johnston of New York. Johnston has a fiery disposition and imparted his own fighting spirit into McTigue. From a careful, methodical fighter, Jimmy transformed Ol' Mike into one of the lions of the ring.

"There was another McTigue-Berlenbach bout and Ol' Mike knocked his rival cold.

"New York went wild over the 'Miracle Man.' Ol' Mike was matched to fight Jack Sharkey. For five rounds it was a furious slugging match Sharkey's youth and aggressiveness finally wore McTigue down and the Boston contender won in 12 rounds.

"McTigue came back for bouts with Pat McCarthy and Tommy Loughran. Ol' Mike admitted he was all through after he lost to Loughran. He took the Walker bout so as to get a farewell shot at the big money. He gave his all during the short time the battle lasted, but it wasn't enough. Father Time is still the king of boxing. All must eventually pay tribute to him."

DONOHUE SEEKS REVENGE IN SHEPPARD GO

Jackie Donohue, fastest punching featherweight Boston has seen since the days of Jimmy Walsh, is in the pink of condition for his return bout with Johnny Sheppard, to be held in the Arena Monday night as the semi-final to the Sugge-Fuller bout.

Donohue was a sensation in that last battle with Sheppard. It was his first test against an experienced campaigner, and the little South Boston southpaw came through with flying colors after a battle that thrilled the big crowd.

It was Donohue's punching that caught the eye of the crowd, for he snaps them with a speed that is hard to follow. In addition, he is a superb young boxer, as his record in both the amateur and professional ranks would indicate.

The little South Boston boy had something like 403 amateur battles, with only three defeats, and 70 consecutive victories in the professional ranks before he dropped a decision to Sheppard.

The second was hooked heartily by the crowd, and so many minor bouts at the main spot are hard to start on their battle without being interfered to the crowd.

It is the opinion of Donohue's legion of fight fans that a new feather weight has appeared on the scene, to carry the colors of this part of the country right up to the foot of the feather-weight throne.

He is built like Dick Honeyboy Finnegan, boxes like Finnegan, fights like Finnegan, and has the soul of Finnegan. In other words, he looks like the greatest young featherweight to appear in a generation.

The whole card is a good one, and interest in it is reflected in a fine advance sale at the office of Jo Suffolk A. A.

Hudkins Gets Shot at Title Tonight

Los Angeles, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—A blonde thatched youth of 23, Ace Hudkins, long considered a top-notcher, tonight will have his first fling at a world's pugilistic championship.

The youth, who came here three years ago from Nebraska an unknown, will test the right of Joe Dundee, Baltimore Italian, to the welterweight title the latter won a few months ago from Pete Latzo, the Scranton miner. The bout is scheduled to go 10 rounds.

Dundee retained the favorite among those who did their backing with money.

Dundee has been guaranteed $80,000. Hudkins will get 12½ per cent. of the game, which Promoter Dick Donald expects will be more than $100,000.

Delaney May Box Jack Sharkey

New York, Nov. 3 (I.N.S.)—Jack Delaney was firmly entrenched as a heavyweight division contender today, following his acceptance as the choice to meet the winner of the Sharkey-Heeney bout November 18. Delaney was matched to meet the victor on or about December 15. Delaney recently scored over Jack Renault, and is at present in training at Bridgeport.

OH, WELL, AS USUAL—

THE BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN FIRST informed the sport world that Jack Slattery, Boston College baseball coach, and a man ripened in diamond wisdom and experience, might and should succeed Dave Bancroft as Braves manager. The story appeared on October 15. As usual, the first and best sport news is found in the Boston Evening American.

tion b manager Slattery, who has been with the team for the past five years, and knows it inside out. Jack, in his college job, has been developing talent, and that's one of things he must do with the Braves.

He's a calm and philosophic individual, who thinks things out before he acts. He isn't making any statements about his new job, yet. He's going to pack at Braves Field for the last few weeks, and get the real low down on contracts, and kid ball players, and so on.

B. C. MADE IT POSSIBLE.

He has been handed absolute control, and when he does get busy, he's likely to do some surprising things. Half a dozen so-called regulars are due to pass out of the picture. Two or three big trades are on the fire.

The club hasn't given up hope of getting Hazen Cuyler, the famous Pittsburgh exile, who is in wrong with Barney Dreyfus.

Manager Slattery had no idea the position was coming to him. He had been mentioned, but as he had no managerial experience, and as he knew that half a dozen of the baseball big boys were aiming for the spot, he was just getting things lined up for his next Boston College team.

He was surprised when he was called into conference with Judge Fuchs and Vice-President Charlie Adams yesterday. But he signed a one-year contract after a very brief conference. The managers knew what they wanted, told Slattery he had it, and that was that.

The biggest delay came while the owners were trying to get in touch with the Boston College authorities. As soon as the Eagles were reached, they gladly gave their baseball coach permission to go as far as he liked.

The following excerpts from the statement issued by Judge Fuchs after the new manager had been signed, sum up the case neatly.

"We are especially glad that it so happens that he is a product and resident of Boston, who will give all his time, effort and ability to baseball and the city of Boston.

"His heart and life have been surrounded with baseball and the men associated with it. A man of unquestioned character and loyalty, who, we are satisfied, will give his all to his city and his club."

Manager Jack Slattery takes over a team which was one of the great disappointments of the last National League race. The Braves finished so brilliantly in 1926 that experienced baseball men figured them to make a real first division bid last summer. They flopped dismally, however, after getting off to a good start. They went well in streaks, but when the pressure was let down they were footballs for the rest of the league.

Driving power, or something that could kindle a real fighting spirit was lacking. The club lost thirty games, at least, over the three months' final finishing ambition in the close contests.

KNOWS YOUNG PLAYERS.

If was doped out that a baseball man, experienced in handling young players and owning plenty of big league knowledge, could remedy whatever was wrong. And the Slattery qualifications along these lines outpointed all the rest.

Manager Jack is a South Boston native, and lives now in Jamaica Plain. He is 45 years of age and started playing baseball on the lots over in South. He was picked off by the college scouts, and played with Boston College, Fordham and Tufts.

Then he drifted to the New York State League, Columbus in the American Association, the Chicago White Sox, Milwaukee, Lemon of the Coast League, Washington and Toronto.

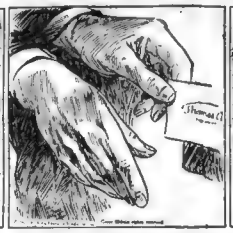
LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized by Mr. Edison)

Text by Arthur Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister

In 1871 Edison married Miss Mary Stilwell, who died in 1884, leaving three children. Two daughters, Mrs. William Leslie and Mrs. [illegible], and Marion Estelle Edison, known by her telegraphic name, "Dot." The drawing shows Edison in his laboratory about 1880.



"Edison's hands," said an expert on character reading, "are worth a great deal of watching. They are not muscular hands at all, but long and hollow backed. The hands of the dreamer, the idealist, the man of imagination." These are the fine "tools" that carry out the orders of the master mind.

At the annual field day of the Edison employes, September 17, 1927, a feature of the day was the parade of Edison "Old Timers." One hundred and four employes who had been in service twenty-five years or more were in line. Mrs. Edison decorated William H. Meadowcroft, dean of the veterans.

Edison attends few "affairs" of any kind, but there is one which he rarely misses, and that is Edison field day. He enters thoroughly into the spirit of the day and sometimes into its activities, at least to the extent of throwing out the baseball for the annual inter-departmental game.

Gelatin Bases for Dainty Cooking of Desserts

INTERESTING in their infinite [illegible] were the dainty desserts [illegible] and Martha Lee [illegible].

Now facts are continually being discovered about gelatin. We find that it is not only a valuable food in itself, but also in the digestion of other food, and enables the body to derive more nourishment from them. For instance, one-half teaspoonful of gelatin in a glass of milk will make the milk more digestable and so aids to its nourishment. Simply mix the gelatin in a little of the cold milk, dissolve it in hot milk or hot water, and add this to the whole glass of milk.

When baby must be fed with a substitute milk it is desirable to add gelatin to the milk, not only because it is rich in growth-producing elements that make children sturdy and strong, but because it greatly aids in the digestion of this milk.

On the modern table gelatin may be used in pearls, the every course from soup to dessert.

And when it comes to left overs—a tiny bit of cold meat and a little gelatin and you can perform an elder's miracle and a meat loaf. Lemon flavored gelatin is a base for many attractive vegetable salads and, of course, the gelatin fruit salad has an entire used place on the dinner table.

If a jelly dish is required quickly, two gelatin should be increased at [illegible] and set in a bowl of cracked ice. The mixture will stiffen more quickly if the gelatin is melted over hot water and added to a cold liquid. A sweet mixture requires less gelatin than an acid one. In hot weather the amount of gelatin should be increased by a half teaspoon. The mixture, of course, will stiffen more rapidly in small individual molds than in one large mold. Dip the molds in cold water or coat them lightly with oil before the liquid is poured in. Then in unmolding, dip for just a minute in warm water and loosen the jelly around the edges.

SNOW PUDDING.

One tablespoonful of granulated gelatin, ¼ cup of cold water, 1 cup boiling water, ¾ cup of sugar, ¼ cup of lemon juice, whites of 2 eggs.

Soak gelatin in the cold water and then dissolve it in the hot water. After adding the sugar and lemon juice, strain and set aside to cool, stirring occasionally. When it is quite thick, beat with an egg beater. Add the well-beaten egg whites and continue to beat until it is stiff enough to hold its shape. Mold or pile by spoonfuls on a glass dish. Serve with a soft custard made with the egg yolks.

This Day in Our History

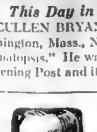
The LIFE and LETTERS of WOODROW WILSON



by RAY STANNARD BAKER.

Defeat the Hardest Blow He Had Received Up to That Time

men, residents of the large cities, where they came into contact with the blustering club element of the alumni. Moreover, they were sensibly alarmed over the financial problems which confronted the university.

Much money was required to support the new preceptorial system much more for new buildings, and Wilson and Cleveland were insisting, strenuously, on the support of their plans for a graduate college. It was also the year of the 1907 ban,—almost indeed at the height of it, and some of these men were closely associated with the great financial interests. It was a time of alarm and anxiety—for caution, not expansion.

Great pressure was, therefore, brought upon Wilson, even to the point of veiled threats that certain powerful contributors to the university that if he forced his proposals at this time their financial assistance would cease.

Suggestions were also made that he compromise and build a "sample quadrangle" on the campus to test out his plan—one of the trustees even offered to furnish the money for it—but he considered that this course would avail nothing, since such a quadrangle would be filled by men not in the cause at all and the real problem would not be met. He thought such a proposal merely a device for dodging the issue, a method he hated.

When the trustees met, therefore, Wilson announced that the committee on social coordination had no report to make. Dyne promptly offered the following resolutions:

"1. That the action taken by the board in June be reconsidered.

"2. That the board do not now deem it wise to adopt the recommendations made by the committee and that the president be requested to withdraw them.

"3 That the committee be discharged."

The vote was immediately taken, with every member voting for it except one—Dr. Dewitt. In June every member except one had approved the plan!

Blow the Hardest Wilson Had Ever Experienced

It was a fearful blow to Wilson—the hardest he had ever had to meet up to that time. It had divided the institution, it had been a friendship. To save Wilson some of his embarrassment, however, and to ease the situation before the public, Dr. Swan Dodge, Dodge's uncle and Pyne secondary, that the following statement be issued.

The board, having reconsidered its action of last June, has asked Dr. Wilson to withdraw his plan, and he has withdrawn it. The board fully recognizes that the president's convictions have not changed, and have no wish to hinder him in any way in his purpose to endeavor to convince the members of the board and Princeton men that the plan is the right solution."

Such a promise to let him talk gave Wilson no comfort. He felt that the action of the trustees amounted to deliberate defense of a way of life in Princeton University which defeated its primary purpose. Vested property rights, social life, idle, empty ceremonies, were more powerful than the intellectual vitality of the place. Wilson perceived more vividly than ever before that the same forces were dominant within the university that he felt to be politically dangerous outside.

He never for a moment considered giving up the fight, but he did think of resigning from the university. He drafted a letter in shorthand, setting forth his position, but did not finally complete or dispatch it. He talked with Axson about returning to the practice of the law in Virginia, where he could carry on his fight outside of the university and he even went so far as to recommend from alumni who knew the situation well. Certain of the rich Eastern men would oppose him, but the mass, and the Western men would support him

"There is no doubt" wrote David B. Jones, "about where the great mass of our alumni stand on this question, and the obstruction that rows itself down to the club men who so largely contribute toward the support of the university. In time even those men will see that the only way in which Princeton can preserve its self-respect is to free itself from dictation from outside, no matter at what cost.

"It is much better that Princeton should limit its work, even cut off of some of its precincts and some of its faculty, falling back to what the permanent endowment can take care of and from that to build up again, than that it should become a thing of contempt and a sham institution of learning." . . .

"If Mr. Pyne thinks it best to withdraw his support, I shall be very sorry, but I shall be infinitely more sorry to see the university dominated by the club men of New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh."

Here we see Wilson driven more and more to the democratic issue being prepared for the greater struggle in America politics into which he was soon precipitated. The schooling he himself was getting—bitterly, drastically—was priceless. It was not only in the clarification of his vision of the real "enemies of American democracy," but in the strategy of the struggle itself.

He was learning by experience for the first time how men acted when under political, social or economic pressure. He saw vividly the problems, mistakes and dangers confronting the leader—lessons that were to prove incalculable in future years

Reassurance and Sympathy Sent by His Warm Friends

From Dr. Jacobus, as well as from other warm friends, came the reassurance and sympathy that Wilson needed. It was a new call to arms to fight the good fight; and it was from now on, and strongly, the fight for democracy. It was a turning point in Wilson's career. He saw clearly that the struggle was wider than the world of the university that it went to the roots of the nation's life. His heart now to consider more seriously the political advances that were being made to him; he began to see that he might have to carry his fight over into the national arena.

But Dr. Jacobus and David B. Jones were urging him to press the fighting within the university confidently. They warned him not to retire or weaken. As Dr. Jacobus wrote on October 26, 1907:

"I have no hesitation as to what is your duty in the situation. This is too serious a matter not to be taken seriously by the board as well as by yourself, for it is being taken most seriously by the great public who are interested in the matter far more deeply than the mere set of the clubs or the scared set of the board at present in office.

"I would not resign now. I would fight it out. I would take my time, but I would make the scheme and the principle which it embodies so plain to every alumni association that the whole working spirit of American democracy would rise to the acceptance of them with the instinct of the preservation of our national institutions. . . . You must believe as when we say that there is absolutely no one who can lead Princeton to this expression of her best ideals but yourself. Be assured that the plain people of the great body of the alumni and of the educational world outside are with you as surely as the plain people of the nation were with Abraham Lincoln forty-five years ago, or with Theodore Roosevelt today and in the end you have got to win out."

Wilson's hesitation was indeed only momentary.

His plan of campaign became at once clear. He was always dinner table. These debates did not end in 1907; they continued to long after Wilson remained at Princeton and was close enough to cause excitement to this day. While Hibben's opposition did not at once bring about a severance in his relationships with Wilson the old intimacy was gone. Stockton Axson says:

". . . It is the firm belief of those of us who knew all about that friendship, its origin, its growth and its cessation, that the final breach left a permanent scar on Mr. Wilson's spirit. Mr. Wilson remained afraid of that kind of a friendship until the end of his days."

In January 18 Wilson sailed for Bermuda, hoping to secure a real rest. He was suffering from his old nervous trouble. He did not, unfortunately, put aside his work entirely. There were lectures to write. From there he wrote to his wife:

"Hermuda is certainly the best place in the world in which to forget Princeton, at least Princeton as an organization and a problem; it would be a perfect paradise were it most soothing rest, but a bit of work is toxic added. It keeps the blood moving agreeably. And, inasmuch as my knee keeps me from taking much exercise out of the house, the piece of business aside the house is all the more wholesome and opportune."

Home a Gathering Place for Witty, Interesting Folk

He renewed his acquaintance with Mrs. Mary Allen Peck (Mrs. Hulbert) whom he met the year before. Here, home in the islands was a gathering place for witty and interesting people. To Mrs Wilson he wrote on January 26, 1908:

". . . Mark Twain . . . arrived on the boat this morning, and Mrs. Peck at once took possession of him. They are old friends. Indeed, she seems to know everybody worth knowing. She has been coming down here a great many Winters, and everybody turns up here sooner or later. I would like to see his wife!

"Mark Twain has been down here between decks, and I have been a good deal with him. He seems to like being with me. Yesterday Mrs. Peck gave him a lunch at her house and gathered in most interesting little group of garrison people to meet him. He was in great form and delighted everybody."

Later the friendship with Mrs. Peck deepened. There were letters between the two families and a lively correspondence of the sort Wilson always delighted Wilson. Often the letters, like those of many others in Wilson's friends, were read in the family circle at Princeton, together with his own replies. Some of these replies, copies of which are preserved, remained among the President's papers at his death.

In later years the friendship was made the target of scandalous innuendo—the last resource of unscrupulous politics and one of the most difficult attacks for the public man to combat. Whisperings, rumors, gossip—nowhere anything to get hold of, nowhere any reputable person to challenge. Many public men have suffered from such accusations of slander. Theodore Roosevelt met the absurd charge that he was a drunkard by suing for libel an inconsequential newspaper which had been bold. That stopped it.

But in Wilson's case the charges never at any time reached the surface. No effort or expense was spared by Wilson's enemies, especially in 1916, to get at anything that could publish, knowing that such charges if substantiated would ruin him. It is significant that nothing was ever published. Yet the wildest

'Lovelorn'; Ann Asks Georgie About Bill

answered "Well—er—see you tomorrow, Jimmy."

She rang off, and stood there, puzzled. Not exactly puzzled, more annoyed. Jimmy liked her—liked her a lot. But as for liking him—! He was all right, of course, but he was so heavy, so dull about everything. Kind probably, but undistinguished, even uninteresting. The phone bell for instance—he was just made her talk, and gave her nothing to talk about.

She put the thought of him from her mind as if it were something distasteful, at least something that annoyed her nerves.

It was ten o'clock. Too early to go to bed, but what else was there to do? Go to bed, go to sleep, wake up next morning, and wonder what it was that had been bothering her the night before. That was the system.

A system, however, that did not work. Lying there in the dark, cosy by her eyes, telling herself to go to sleep, made her only all the more wakeful. She stirred restlessly, turned this way and that. Hours went on, hours and hours—or were they merely minutes. What had happened to Georgie? Where was she? Why wasn't she home by this time?

Ann got out of bed, turned on the light, hunted for her watch. Before her fingers had closed on it, there was a creak on the stairway, and the door was flung open.

Georgie, her eyes very bright, her cheeks glowing, her smile radiant and charming. Georgie leaving the best time in all the world, and knowing it!

And yet Ann had seen her come in like this so often. There was no particular change in her spirits this evening, nothing to indicate that she had engaged herself to Bill.

How clever she was at concealing things, Ann thought. Georgie was the people call a born actress. But when was she going to admit the truth?

Not a word from Georgie except a rattle of talk about places and people about things that had made her giggle, things that aroused her interest, where she had been, what she had seen, done, said. What Bill had said.

Not not the important thing that Bill had said. Unless—unless it if Bill had lost his nerve, had bungled the poor little ring in his pocket, and not dared to risk everything on a single toss!

The next minute the lights were out, and Georgie slipped into bed.

Ann struggled to keep very calm, very rational.

"Tell me, Georgie, did Bill propose to you tonight?"

She hadn't meant to say it as suddenly as that. Not quite as blunt-ly.

She heard Georgie's stifled exclamation:

"Really, Ann. Does Bill tell you everything he's going to do—in advance."

"He told me this anyway."

"Well, he did. The minx was so loud I could scarcely hear him. And I has proposals!"

Ann turned. Her arm went around Georgie, protectively, warmly. "Tell me, Georgie dear — I've a right to know, haven't I?"

A long silence, a deep pleasure in the darkness of the dreary room of Mrs. Leary's dreary boarding-house.

Then Georgie said in a quiet voice:

"Yes, of course, he did. I knew he was going to for weeks, so you see, I knew just what I wanted to say."

"What do you mean by that, Georgie?"

"I mean there's a lot of fun I can still have, a lot of things I can still do. It isn't as if Bill were a millionaire."

"You don't mean—oh, Georgie, you don't mean—you turned him down?"

There was a silence again in the darkness, a silence about to be defined. Then the depressions and the irritions flamed up in Ann, three or four times into the wind, made of her another person.

"I think you don't know what you're doing!" And her voice had anger in it, and worse still contempt.

Tomorrow—Ann worries over Georgie's defiance.

'Becky'; Nan Tells Her Story to Geoffrey

CHAPTER 43.
By RAYNER HELIG.

Geoffrey, in white pajamas that opened over his throat, giving him a sort of childish, helpless look, was lying back on a chintz-covered couch. He had a book in his hands, but his head had fallen back, and his eyelids drooped.

Nan fell on her knees beside him, putting her arms about him, tears starting to her eyes as she was

CORRECT MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIA BEECKMAN

The Farewell Party

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My dearest girl friend is leaving to live in another city, and to show her how much I have enjoyed her friendship, I would like to give her a farewell party. I am in doubt as to how to word the invitations, as I would like to have her friends continute toward a gift for her.

I know that you will tell me if this is correct, and how to write the invitations.

What would you suggest for a gift?

AN APPRECIATIVE READER

FOR the invitation for such a party, the personal is the best and most convenient form. And in this you can explain too your plan for the giving of the gift. I recommend that you decide first what this gift is to be and determine about what it is to cost, so that you can tell the guests-to-be about what each is expected to give. I am a firm believer in having this kind of thing per[illegible] minimum of choice [illegible] no extra.

This will be a [illegible] you could base your invitation. Dear Dorothy:

I am planning to give an "Arrivole" party for Grace Cook, I [illegible] how short a time I have to live in St. Louis. I am sure some of our close friends [illegible] may have a "get-together" before she goes, and to show her how devoted we are to her. I [illegible] on Wednesday afternoon, October the 5th, at 3 o'clock, for some "big old bridge," or any other game that anyone wishes to play. You will come—won't you?

And I thought that it would be charming for Grace to have something that would symbolize our friendship for her. Don't you think this would be a good idea? I had thought of something in [illegible] leather, Italian leather, say something that we could have [illegible] with her initials. I saw a beautiful writing case the other day in [illegible] in fact several, for around $20, which would mean that we would each give about a dollar. Do tell me what you think of the idea.

Best and dearest wishes to you, and the hope of hearing soon that you will come on the 5th.

Most devotedly yours,

[illegible] Geoffrey, my dear, my dear Geoffrey . . ."

His opened eyes heavy with drowsy, confused sadness, and put one hand behind her head, pulling her down to him, pressing her face against his bare throat. He felt her [illegible] warm and moist on his skin, loosed up and saw her opened face, would have spoken but but that she pressed her mouth on his, smothering the words.

Then she drew back. "A dear kiss, Geoffrey," she said, terribly still. "Nothing to you, but you ever want to kiss me again."

He sat up, startled, half teasing, thinking [illegible] words of love. But [illegible] ended in a little. She knelt at his feet, loosing his hands, resting her hands against her, she whispered. "I want to be here, to touch you, while I say it."

"Say what, love? What has happened?"

She stared at him, ignoring the tears that welled up into her eyes and ran down her cheeks.

"Geoffrey . . . this man [illegible] left . . . it wasn't a sort [illegible] an accident or [illegible] on purpose . . . [illegible] he crushed her hands in his. "What are you saying? [illegible] an accident? [illegible] sort of [illegible]

"Yours drip [illegible] I [illegible] I [illegible] you the truth, Geoffrey. [illegible] Perhaps I am [illegible] you the truth. Geoffrey, I [illegible] I [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Wilson Received His Defeat as the Most Severe Blow of Life

tles were spread about and, unfortunately, widely believed.

Human beings seem far more willing to accept the vilest scandals about a public man without a shred of real evidence, than to admit the noblest public service. A good many people read the letters to Mrs. Hulbert. They are just such letters as he was writing to other warm friends, both men and women—his views of public affairs, and public men, discussion of books and the like.

The friendship with Mrs. Hulbert continued for years. She experienced great sorrow and trouble, and Wilson made many efforts in the later years to assist her and her family. The very fact that scandalous stories were told only hardened him in his loyalty to his friend.

Wilson returned to Princeton on February 27, 1908. He was still suffering great discomfort from his neuritis.

But he plunged at once into the quad campaign—complicated now by the growing controversy over the graduate college. In March he made extended trips, speaking at Baltimore and Chicago, and in Wisconsin and Connecticut.

But the struggle from this point onward grew steadily more difficult. The controversy over the graduate college was becoming more intense, tending to occupy Wilson's attention. His health was again precarious; and in June he sailed for Europe.

"I have found the last year go very hard with me," he wrote to Cleveland H. Dodge. "I feel, as you know, blocked in plans upon which I feel the successful administration of the university, both as a teaching body and as a wholesome society, depends, and for which I can find no substitute, and in these circumstances it has been a struggle with me all the year to keep in any sort of spirits. I must try, as you must, to divest my mind of the matter altogether at least for the Summer."

Whatever unhappiness Wilson may have felt over the defeat of his quad proposals—and it was bitter indeed—his struggle seemed actually to increase his prestige, and if it made him enemies it also bound his friends, who understood the absolute sincerity of his purpose, more strongly to him than ever before. friends who were later to do yeoman service in his political campaigns. How men love a fighter!

In a letter of June 12, 1908, David B. Jones wrote Wilson "", that the only thing that makes work on the Princeton board attractive and worthwhile, in my opinion, is your effort to re-establish it as a seat of learning. When the revolt against present conditions sets in what you are now saying and doing will be recognized and rewarded."

On April 12, 1908, Professor Harper wrote from Switzerland:

"It has been a great pleasure, which I wish you to share, to observe how the prestige of Princeton has advanced in England and Scotland. It seems to be understood that we stand for a real education."

His record at Princeton was also bringing him distinguished honors in the greater world. In January, 1908, he was elected a member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters; he had become a member of the Board of the Carnegie Foundation; he was more than ever on call for addresses at distinguished gatherings; he was tempted to accept college presidencies elsewhere. He was being more and more considered as a possible political leader. His attitude for a time made him unpopular with influential groups of students, especially those connected with the clubs, and yet they could sing at commencement the faculty song:

"Here's to Wilson, King Divine,
Who rules this place along with Fine.
We hear he's soon to leave this town
To take on Teddy Roosevelt's crown."

He was, moreover, right when he declared passionately to the Chicago alumni in March:

"I want you to understand what the penalty of my sitting down is—somebody else has got to do the job; it has got to be a systematic job, and it has got to be thoroughly done."

The evils were there, and must sooner or later be met. Many friends of Princeton clearly recognized this fact. Years later, in 1921, J. Lionberger Davis, a trustee, wrote to Wilson:

"My thoughts have been going back to the days in Princeton (of which I am now an alumni trustee), I see the same old forces—the same antagonisms. The old issues were never settled and never will be until they are settled right. As Princton grows we must adopt the principles for which you labored; and, whether we label them 'College System' or 'The Oxford and Cambridge Plan,' they will still be substantially the same as the so-called 'Quad System' of more than a decade ago."

It is significant that ten years after Wilson's struggle President Hibben was attacking the flagrant abuses of the club system. Richard Cleveland, a son of Grover Cleveland, then a student at Princeton, denounced the clubs and vowed never to join one of them.

Seventeen years later, soon after the death of Woodrow Wilson, the problem again arose, more bitter than ever. A committee appointed by President Hibben made a long report that might almost have been written by Wilson himself. Said "The Princeton Alumni Weekly," May 21, 1926:

"It was felt by all representative Princeton undergraduates that the system had become intolerable. So strong was this conviction that a petition was signed by the president of the senior class, the managers and captains of all athletic teams, the chairman of 'The Princetonian' and the presidents of all the clubs, requesting President Hibben to abolish 'bicker week.'"

The report expresses dissatisfaction with the club system and gropes for a similar remedy:

"Our life here should and must be one complete whole. Incapable of segregation into separate compartments. At the present time it is evident that the social life suffers by separation from the intellectual life and clearly the intellectual life suffers from a lack of spontaneous and whole-hearted recognition of its worth in our clubs. Surely the social life cannot for all time be kept separate from the intellectual life. If it is so kept, our intellectual life must suffer because of the inevitable overempnasis on social distinctions.

"The present exaggerated emphasis upon false values and standards and the consequent divorce of our social from our academic life threatens, as we have already pointed out, our whole purpose and direction of an educational institution.

"There must be a fundamental change of viewpoint toward the whole social life of Princeton."

The little world of Princeton will not accept her prophet!

But the majority of those in authority at Princeton was too strong for Wilson. In tomorrow's installment it will be seen that he was for a time victorious in his fight for democratization against the exclusive expensive graduate building, but then the tide turned against him.

THE WITTY SAYINGS OF MEDBURY

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

AMERICAN cities have over fifty thousand different clubs and lodges. These are the places where married men go when they want a little home life.

ONE fellow who promised to "love, honor and obey" reserved the rights after six o'clock.

HE wanted to be a husband in the daytime, and a bachelor as soon as it got dark.

HE spent so much time at the club that his wife was practically an old maid.

SOMETIMES she wished he were dead so that she could give the children a definite answer.

THERE'S no sense in her getting a divorce because she wouldn't be able to tell the difference.

HE was home for two weeks last month with the hives. She was sorry it wasn't the seven year itch.

SHE admired him because he was a big outdoor man, but she didn't figure he'd be out so much.

THERE'S only one way to a man's heart, and she lost the can opener.

ONE husband says he always spends his nights at the club so that he can talk in his sleep.

HE doesn't want his conscience to be his wife's guide.

BUT he loves his home. It makes a wonderful place to keep his golf sticks.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent. of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c.

Every Plater gets it more or less, but I am unfortunate enough to get it all over my body from my head to my feet. I was very much discouraged for some time and had about given up all hope of ever being healed when I tried your Resinol Soap and Ointment. I immediately began to get better and today my face and the tender parts of my body are entirely healed without even a scar. Arrangements have been made by the Eastern Steamship Lines to fly their house flag in the Caribbean this Winter. The company's new steamship Yarmouth, which is illegally equipped in every detail for cruise service, will make a series of six cruises to the West Indies, the first leaving New York, Saturday, January 7, returning Saturday, January 21.

There will be five similar trips leaving New York January 28th, February 10th, February 25th, March 12th and March 26th. These are the only cruises from New York back to New York in 13 days, thus protecting the two weeks' vacation.

This is an innovation in Winter cruise travel which, in addition to offering more than the usual advantages of a cruise trip, brings the price to a figure never before realized and which should receive as popular a reception by the public as the advent of the low-priced automobile.

The itinerary of each voyage will be approximately as follows:—Leave Pier 18, New York for Miami, 961 miles with a stop over of 9 hours, proceed to Havana, 296 miles, stop over of 2 days and a night. Proceed for Kingston, Jamaica, 710 miles, allowing 20 hours for sightseeing. The next leg is to Nassau, Bahamas, 575 miles, which will give you time to spend on water and about 70 hours on land. The company has gone carefully into all details connected with these voyages so as to ensure an interesting, never-to-be-forgotten cruise.

The Yarmouth, which is right from the builders' hands, is of the latest deep-water ocean-going construction and displaces 5,000 tons and could cruise around the world. There are many de luxe cabins and several suites with private baths, shelter decks, sun parlors, ballroom, special smoking room, lounge rooms, music room beautiful dining room, and fine promenade decks.

Watch for Your Answer on This Page Every Day

Q.—I wish you could tell me something about my son. What is his occupation? He is a little wild and I am worried about him.—Mrs. A. B.

A.—The best treatment for the boy is not to worry. Assume a quiet reigned sort of air. At heart he is tender and loves you. Your attitude will awaken his real affection and he will come to you all right.

Q.—Will my daughter finish her college course? Will my son have a bright future? Have I cause to worry as much as I do about my personal feelings?—M. G.

A.—Yes to the first two questions. You are too sensitive and live too much in days past. Look forward to days to come. Worry is a thief in the night.

Q.—Could you tell me what has happened to my former friend?—M. F.

A.—He is captivated for the moment by another fancy. He will come around soon. When you see him be friendly and nonchalant.

Q.—My mother has been seriously ill. Do you think that she will ever be well and able to get around again?—R. S.

A.—Yes. She is surrounded with her love and will be well in time. She will live to a good old age.

Q.—Will I marry the man I am in love with? He does not appear to love me. I wish you could tell me how to win him.—E. R.

A.—No power on earth can do that. Love cannot be forced, and cannot be demanded. I could see very little prospect for a happy life for you with a man who is not sure enough to talk to you. Look around for other fish in the sea. A woman is happier in marriage with a man who loves her rather than with a man she is madly in love with. A woman grows to like a man who is kind and true.

Q.—Will I ever be happy and can I overcome the cause of my unhappiness?—M. M.

A.—Happiness lies within yourself, my dear child. You are thinking and worrying common sense you can overcome your difficulties. You invite by your thought worse conditions.

Q.—Shall I be successful if I start in the chicken business?—R. T. G.

A.—Depends on yourself. The field is unlimited and chickens are always in demand.

Q.—Would you tell me when I will meet the fellow I am to marry?—L. M. S.

A.—He will come into your life in 1926.

Q.—What would you do if you cared for a fellow and he turned you down every time you met him on the street? I simply don't know what to do.—L. D.

A.—I would have too much pride and self-respect to throw myself at him. If a man does not love a woman she is foolish to force herself upon him.—F. M. B.

F. M. B.—Will the farm be sold and will I have a chance to buy it myself afterwards?

A.—Yes.

C. M. F.—What kind of a man am I going to marry?

A.—My dear child, keep your mind on your studies and not on the men. A girl in school should concentrate on the work before her. Mr. Wright will come along in due time. So do not worry.

C. M.—Will I get the position I seek and how soon?

A.—Around Easter holidays.

J. H. R.—Will you please tell me if my husband will be successful in finding work soon?

A.—Yes. Keep scanning the classified ads and be diligently on the quest. Your prayers will be for him. I see him at work and soon.

M. F.—Will you please tell me if I am going to get a position? If so, when? Also will he be in harness in the next four weeks.

M. F.—I'd like to have a girl for a pal, which I haven't found yet. What kind of a girl?

A.—Keep your eyes open and join some of the young folks' clubs connected with your church.

L. S.—Is it advisable for me to invest money in a restaurant that I am about to buy?

A.—There is a good future in the business, but it will be no bed of roses at second. You might get some points on the business from Mrs. Gertrude Van Hengel, who has about the finest eating and food place I have seen in a long time.

H. L. J. H.—Will I go to Texas in 1928?

A.—Yes.

C. C.—Would you advise me to take my girl out of school next year, or would I benefit by sending her to high school? She is fourteen years old. I feel that she must have a good, thorough training for life and I want to give her the best for life school by all means.

C. C.—Yes. Be generous and have a heart to heart talk.

A.—I think he will, and will profit from mistakes he has made in another venture. Encourage him all you can.

E. W.—Wheels will run in your success. He? The States or Canada?

A.—Become one by yourself. Size your surroundings. Both countries offer great opportunities for a good limited screw. Success to you.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peas among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defence.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

Cotton Mills Down South

Reasons for Their Success

Albert W. Thompson, of Fitchburg, vice-president of the Parks-Cramer Company, talked to the Kiwanis Club of Manchester, N. H., on Southern competition with New England's cotton textile mills.

Mr. Thompson was once an official of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company. His sympathy for the Northern manufacturer is sincere. He hopes there will be no further agitation up this way for higher wages and shorter hours.

IS cotton manufacturing in the South successful? It is, Mr. Thompson says, and here are some of the reasons, as he sees them:

"On the whole, they are better equipped than the Northern mills.

"The workers are happy, contented and efficient.

"The management is different. Down there, you can see the principal owner in overalls, helping his men in putting up an addition to the plant.

"The management is local. Personal contact with the workers is a distinct advantage."

Mr. Thompson believes the worst is over, in the mill situation in New England, and he makes certain "suggestions," among them more progressive management and the more general use of the automatic loom, now found in most of the mills down South.

As for the difference in wages, Mr. Thompson is of the opinion that it will not remain permanently to the advantage of the Southern employer. Improvement in means of transportation, he says, together with the higher standard of living now being set, may result in higher wages.

Why You'll See Boston Firemen at Poland Spring

Commissioner Hultman and Chief Sennott of the Boston Fire Department think they have hit upon a scheme which will greatly reduce, if it does not wipe out, the false alarm nuisance.

Hereafter, any attache of the B. F. D. who causes the arrest and conviction of a person giving a false alarm will receive TWO WEEKS' VACATION, WITH PAY.

It looks reasonable.

You will observe that the Commissioner and his Chief are silent, however, on the subject of what will be done for the ringer of the false alarm.

Merely an oversight. We have it straight from Headquarters that HE will get a much longer vacation.

Without.

Try the Mississippi Coast

There, They Catch Fish Like This One

THIS FINE BASS WAS CAUGHT WITH HOOK AND LINE BY CAPTAIN McDONALD OFF MISSISSIPPI'S SHORE. YOU COULD CATCH ONE LIKE IT.

Speaking of fish and sport, what do you think of this giant bass caught in the Gulf of Mexico by a Mississippian, Captain McDonald, of Pass Christian Isles, Mississippi?

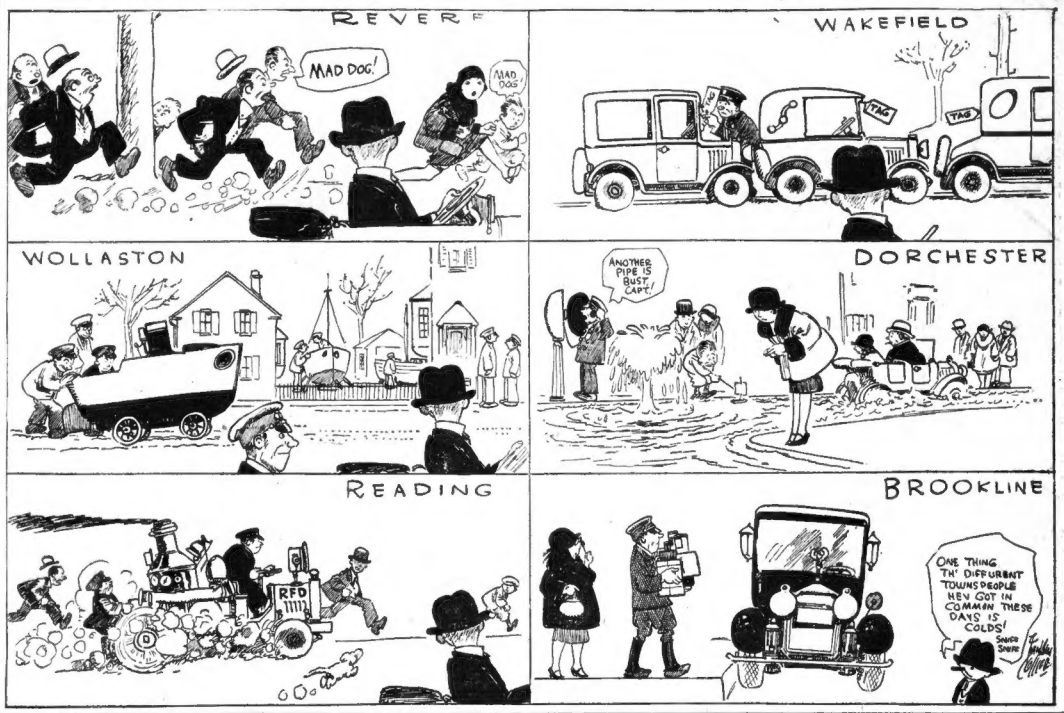
Captain McDonald, President of the National Tarpon Association, knows something about fishing, and he needed everything he knew when he caught this 500-pound bass. Said he, "The fish dragged me all over the Gulf of Mexico, before I got it."

Wonderful is the State of Mississippi, and wonderful also Mississippi's neighbor, Louisiana, with the marvellous old City of New Orleans, combining the romance of ancient days with the intense "go-getter" energy of 1927.

Too few Americans know of the beauty, value and infinite resources of Uncle Sam's possessions along the Gulf of Mexico. Get into your automobile or your Pullman seat, in Maine, Wisconsin, Illinois, New York or wherever you live, and go down to the place where fish like this are to be caught.

You will find a wonderful climate, hospitable people, perfect weather, WINTER, SUMMER, SPRING or FALL. And after you have seen the Gulf Coast you will say more fervently and thankfully than ever: "He hath not dealt so with any nation; and as for His judgments, they have not known them."

Identifying Our Towns -:- -:- By Franklin Collier



TAKING BLINKERS FROM OUR EYES

By DR. FRANK CRANE

SIR OLIVER LODGE the other day said: "Science pursues a narrow road in search of truth, looking neither to the right nor the left. Well, it will soon have to take its blinkers off. The roads are not the whole universe. There is a good deal of ground in between. It looks at present like a jungle and thicket—uncivilized. Well, we will have to civilize it."

The fault to which Sir Oliver refers is not confined to scientists, although it is common among them. A man may look so intently at that thing upon which his attention is fixed that he fails to see important things about him to which he gives no heed.

Some of the most important things of life come unexpectedly. Some of our most vital events are not those toward which we labored.

A man should keep his eyes and be able to see things "out of the tail of his eye."

The best things that ever happened to us have not been those things that we so arduously searched for, but things which have bumped into us unexpectedly.

It is all right to pursue one subject with concentration, but we should not concentrate so much that we do not see other things.

Many a man has been so busy with his trade or calling that he has failed to recognize opportunities that thrust themselves upon him.

Many a religionist has been so occupied with his faith that he has taken in none of the indubitable facts that surround him.

So, also, some scientists pursue their duty so fixedly that they fail to see the spiritual realities that occur about them.

A concentrated mind is a good thing, but it should also be an alert mind. We should press forward toward the goal in view, but we should be ready to jump at prizes that lie by the roadside.

There is such a thing as too much concentration.

Men centreing all their attentions upon the pursuit of wealth do not see the little opportunities for happiness that lie along their path day by day. Women are so intent upon gaining some goal which they think important that they miss other blessings which they might have by the way for the taking.

Let us devote all our attention to our business in hand, but let us remember that there are other things in this world than the thing upon which we have set our heart and that sometimes these other things are quite as important as our chosen object.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

A PRAYER FOR A COMMON DAY

MY Unseen Friend,

Life Source, whom we call God,
But for whose being I have found no name,
Help me today!

This day, I think, will be a common day,
Devoid of venture, risk or thrill or show;
Eight working hours, plodding in a row
Like lagging sheep, whose herder I must be—
And You, who made me, know I hate such days!

I can face danger or the press of haste,
Cruel shock or sudden uproar and alarm,
Or I can laugh and play the merry clown,
Or act a part to mask some desperate need—
But something limps in me when days are dull.

I fret and whimper at monotony,
I sulk and shirk when Life's procession drags,
I weep great tears of pity for myself
And snarl with anger at each fancied wrong,
And hate my brother and the world and You.

And so I ask Your help this common day;
Help me keep sweet when there is none to see;
Help me be patient though there be no praise,
And brave, without the spot light or applause,
And honest, in the secret, unseen acts.

Help me forget my foolish, strutting self,
Forget my childish need for risks and thrills,
And let me be a part of You today,
A part of Life's eternal urge and plan,
As trees and birds and oceans are a part.

Help me be simple, like a growing grain

That grows alike in sun or rain or wind,
And steadfast like the deep, enduring soil,
Whose service never slackens through the years,
Nor ever reckons up the gain or loss,

So help me see that every day is rare,
And still my fretting with your boundless peace,
Dear Friend, whom I can feel but cannot see,
For I am like a spoiled and peevish child,
Who pouts at being in a quiet room.
Amen.

MAN NOT A MACHINE; SOME THEORIES

By Garrett P. Serviss,

THE title of this article is that of a book recently published in England by E. Rignano, and it expresses a conclusion based by the author upon a very careful study of all the internal and external characteristics and relations of human life, as revealed by the various investigations of science.

The mechanistic and vitalistic philosophies are in irreconcilable opposition, and their encounters are often confusing to the outsider, so that this uncompromising utterance by a competent thinker familiar with all the facts and speculations is reassuring to read.

Rignano dwells upon the evidently purposive character of the actions that form the test in deciding between the two antagonistic views of the nature of man. One of the most telling replies to the mechanistic claim that our apparently mental acts are all the result of mere bodily automatism, is to be found in a little book by C. E. M. Joad on "The Mind and Its Workings."

The mechanists say that when a stimulus is applied from without to one end of the nervous chain formed of the nerve cells of the body and the brain, the appropriate reaction will occur at the other end in as purely a mechanical way as the operation of a penny-in-the-slot machine. If a bee stings your hand the news is flashed by one set of nerves to the brain; there an automatic apparatus of nerves instantly sends out an impulse causing the hand to jerk itself away.

Yes, says Joad, but suppose I am hanging on the edge of a precipice with one arm only, and a wasp stings the hand that does the holding. I shall probably not withdraw the hand in spite of the stimulus that the sting has imparted to that famous automatic mechanism in the brain. Something else has taken charge that is stronger than the alleged automatism, and that bids me to hang on hard.

What it is that thus interferes? Mind, say the vitalists. Not so, respond the mechanists, or the "behaviorists," it is only another set of automatic impulses that take possession of the motor nerves and prevent the passage of the impulse that would cause the fingers to relax their grip. Sometimes the relaxing impulse might capture the right of way ahead of the other, and then the man would fall. It would all depend upon circumstances in the automatic "clearing house" of the brain.

But common sense will ask: Is it not more reasonable to suppose the restraining impulse, which arrests the tendency to move the hand when the sting is felt, to be a purposive act inspired by mental comprehension of the consequences that must follow the letting go?
